WEATHER.

The official local forecast for this vicinity to-day is clear, warmer. For Wednesday, warmer, fair, with rain at night or Thursday morning.

Observer Hagen says: "The storm center referred to yesterday is slowly advancing with its warm wave in advance. The temperature to-morrow will probably be about 40 degrees at its maximum. Very little rain has accompanied the storm so far, but I feel positive that rain will fall Thursday if it does not Wednesday night. Southwesterly winds may be expected to-day and to-morrow. There is no indication as yet of cold weather and none can be expected earlier than Saturday. The coldest weather this morning is in northern Minnesota, where it is 14 degrees above zero. The warmest is 50 degrees at Galveston. The highest temperature here yesterday was 28 degrees, the lowest this morning 22 degrees."

Forecast for western New York, Ohio and Indiana—Warmer; fair; southerly winds to-day and Wednesday.

For Illinois—Warmer; fair; followed in northwest portion by showers Wednesday morning; southerly winds.

For Michigan—Fair, followed on Wednesday by occasional showers; southwesterly winds; warmer.

For Wisconsin—Light showers Wednesday; southerly winds, shifting to westerly; warmer, followed by colder Wednesday night.

SPURNED BY JUDGE NASH

He Refuses to Do the Dirty Political Bidding

Of the Gang of Republican Office Stealers.

He Politely But Firmly Declines to Have Anything to do with the Scheme to Take Away the Seat Belonging to Senator Brice.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—(Special)—Judge Nash has exploded a bomb in the camp of the ranting faction of the Ohio republican party, and there is disorder and confusion seen on all sides. Foraker's friends, aided by a class of small fry politicians, have been raising the cry that Senator Brice must not be sworn in.

Senator Sherman took decided grounds against the proceeding, as did the better class of republican papers throughout the state, but the republican state central committee, urged on by the irresponsible and badly balanced press of the party, called a meeting and "resolved" that Judge Nash should devise some scheme by which Senator Brice could be unseated.

But Judge Nash did not propose to do the dirty work for his party and he refused to have any thing to do with the matter. In a letter to Fred W. Herbst, the local member of the committee, he said that an exceptance of the employment would involve, upon his part, the expenditure of great labor and a large amount of time, as none of the facts referred to are in his possession, and engagements long since made are such that it is impossible for him to accept the offer tendered to him.

It will now be in order for the Foraker papers to read Judge Nash out of the party.

BACKER OUT ON BAIL.

New York, Dec. 1.—Abraham Backer, the note broker who failed for $4,000,000 some months ago, and whose arrest followed for financial irregularities, was arraigned before Recorder Smyth in the court of general sessions to plead to an indictment for grand larceny. He plead not guilty, and his bail was reduced from $15,000 to $12,000, which was furnished.

New York, Dec. 1.—John George Roth, the insane German who attempted to kill the Rev. John Hall Sunday, was arraigned in the Yorkville police court and was placed under $5,000 bail for examination. When asked to plead to the charge he said: "I desire to say nothing one way or the other until I have obtained counsel."

Warrants Out for All Members of the Firm.

Startling Disclosures Are Soon to Follow.

Angry Creditors Invoke the Criminal Law on the Men Who Have Squandered Their Thousands—Cyrus W. Field's Condition Reported Critical To-Day.

New York, Dec. 1.—Warrants were issued late yesterday afternoon by supreme court Judge Pratt, of Brooklyn, for the arrest of Edward M. Field, Daniel A. Lindley, John F. Wiechers and Herman C. Hilmers, composing the firm of Field, Lindley, Welchers & Co.

The warrants were granted on an application and affidavit presented by Lawyer Ward on behalf, it is said, of R. E. Dietz, a creditor of the firm. The affidavit sets up dishonest dealings by the wholesale and fraud.

It is no longer doubtful that wholesale and fraudulent re-hypothecation of securities was indulged in. Edward M. Field was the guilty man, and his partners are only culpable in so far as they alowed themselves to be deceived.

Mr. Wiechers said yesterday he believed the firm was making money and that Feld had promised he would present to each partner $300,000 on Christmas which the firm had earned.

Cyrus W. Field, father of the unlucky speculator, is in an extremely critical condition. The chances are against his recovery. Mr. Field's daughter, Mrs. Lindley, is also very ill with no hope of recovery.

There is much mystery in the whereabouts of Edward M. Field, whose financiering has left such a trail of wreck and ruin. It is said by some members of the family that the unfortunate man is in a private asylum, while others state that he is in his own house guarded by attendants. That he is under restraint at some place there is little doubt.

The arrests will probably take place to-day. Bail was fixed in each case at $50,000.

President Dillon of the Union Pacific made an important statement yesterday. He was asked in regard to the scepticism prevailing among certain Wall street men as to the ignorance of the Union Pacific officials that their securities were to be rehypothecated. It had even been charged, he was told, that they had authorized the re-pledging of the bonds.

"That is not true," said he. "We never authorized their rehypothecation. It is said that when the company repaid a portion of its loan and received back some of the securities that the numbers of the certificates did not correspond with those pledged and that this would have exposed the rehypothecation. That is not true. We never knew of this rehypothecation until after the failure. Then we discovered that they had been re-pledged for more than the loan."

Mr. Dillon said the railroad company would not lose much as the bonds have since increased in value. They can be sold and the advance in price will make up the difference.

Sheriff Gorman was seen by a reporter of the United Press this morning. He said the papers in the case are not yet completed and he was of the opinion that there would be no hurry about their arrest. Meanwhile evidence is accumulating of peculiar methods of financiering and new victims are coming to the front.

Assignee Gould said this morning that of the securities, amounting to $1,586,000, all but $1,000,000 of them had been located. Of this whole amount but $51,000 were found and acknowledged to be good delivery by the Union Pacific people as they had already passed into the hands of third parties.

TRADE WITH HAWAII.

Dr. Mott Smith Consults with Secretary Blaine.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Dr. Mott Smith, Hawaiian representative to the United States, had an audience with Secretary Blaine to-day to complete the details of the reciprocity treaty now in course of negotiation between the United States and Hawaii.

The basis of the treaty is absolute freedom of commercial trade between the two countries. In allowing the goods of the United States to enter Hawaii duty free that country surrenders about $40,000 per annum in custom revenues, and receives in return the benefits derived from the free admission of Hawaiian sugar into the United States. The customs duty of the Hawaiian islands on sugar is 10 per cent. ad valorem. It is expected the treaty will be completed in time to submit it to the senate before the Christmas holidays.

TO KEEP THE CARBON WORKS

Fremont Will Take Some Action To-Night.

A Scheme on Foot to Enlarge the Corporation Limits and Bond the Town—Private Subscriptions Slow.

Fremont, Dec. 1.—(Special)—A citizens committee composed of R. B. Hayes, O. A. Roberts, S. Brinkerhoff, A. E. Rice, J. B. Vandoren, F. Heim, and other prominent business men will wait upon the the stockholders of the Carbon works this evening to see what will be required of the city to keep the works here.

It is evident that enough money can not be raised by subscription and the only way will be to bond the town for the required amount.

There is a scheme on foot to add three-quarters of a mile on each side to the corporation.

This will add five thousand people to the population.

Many prominent citizens were interviewed by the Bee and with few exceptions all are in favor of the plan.

The insurance men are expected to-night to adjust the loss.

There is considerable talk of bonding the town for a large shoe manufactory which is desirous of locating here. The concern employs about 300 people.

AT A RIPE OLD AGE.

Josiah Carpenter Dead—Estimated to be 120 Years Old.

Grafton, W. Va., Dec. 1.—Josiah Carpenter, the oldest inhabitant of West Virginia, died at his residence in Preston county yesterday. Estimates of Carpenter's age varied, but none placed him under 120 years. He claimed to have been born in Louden county, Va., in 1732, and is therefore 159 years old.

He claimed to remember Braddock's defeat and to have served as teamster at that time. Carpenter had a son who died 10 years ago at the age of 80. Until recently his health has been fairly good. He has one daughter still living who is over 80.

SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES.

Evidence of a Cold Blooded Murder in Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 1.—Budd Talley and Bob Newberne, prominent Blount county farmers, were placed in jail at Onento to-day charged with the murder of Stephen Cafes, a neighbor. An old grudge between the men has existed for several years. Just after midnight last night Cafes was called from his house and shot to death. Two men were seen running away. Talley borrowed a rifle that day and said he and Newberne would call on Cafes that night. Lynching is threatened.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Fire destroyed the Berry building at Oakley avenue and West Madison street, a four story brick structure. The three upper floors were flats and all were occupied. The fire at one time threatened dozens of lives and much damage to property, but after a fierce struggle of an hour's duration the flames were got under control without serious injury to any of the inmates of the building and with a loss of $60,000.

CHEROKEE CLAIMS.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The court of claims in the case of the old settlers and Western Cherokee Indians vs. the United States directed that judgment for $830,000 be enetered up against the United States.

The case grows out of the removal of the eastern Cherokees from Georgia and North Carolina to the Cherokee country.

WAS IT LEGALLY PASSED?

The McKinley Bill Before the Supreme Court.

Interesting Questions Discussed by Learned Men.

Five Reasons Given Why the Celebrated Act Should Be Declared Null—The Points Raised by the Attorneys.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The cases to test the constitutionality of the McKinley tariff bill were called for argument in the supreme court yesterday afternoon. The cases are those of Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago, Charles Sternback, et al., Boyd, Sutton & Co., H. Hermann, Sternbach & Co., of New York, appellants, against Clark, collector of customs at Chicago, and Erhardt, collector at New York, and the United States.

W. Wickham Smith, of counsel for Boyd Sutton & Co., opened the case for the appellants. The appeal by which this case came to the supreme court was granted by the United States circuit court for the southern district fo New York from a decision made by the court that the collector of customs at New York had legal authortiy to levy duties on cotton and silk laces under the McKinley tariff act and that the act was not, as claimed by the appellants, nugatory and void.

Mr. Smith outlined the position of his clients, contending that the act was null and void because it was never enacted in the mode prescribed by the consitution; because it assumed to provide for bounties to producers of American sugar, a power which was not among those conferred on congress by the constitution; and because it assumed to confer upon the president of the United States the power of imposing taxes on imports, a power which could be exercised only by congress under the constitution

Mr. Smith outlined the consideration of the question involved under five heads, namely:

Did the omission from the engrossed bill, signed by the president, of a section which formed part of the bill as it passed both houses of congress, render the act unconsitutional?

Are the sugar bounty provisions unconstitutional?

If the sugar bounty provisions are unconstitutional, is the whole act thereby invalidated, or may the remainder of the act stand as law?

Is the so-called "reciprocity section" unconstitutional?

If the reciprocity section is unconstitutional, is the whole act thereby invalidated?

Taking up his first question, Mr. Smith went on to contend hat the tariff act was never contsitutionally enacted because the bill as signed by the president was not the same bill which passed both houses of congress, the change being the omission by the enrolling clerk of the tobacco rebate section which had been restored by the senate and house conferences.

Mr. Smith also contended that the sugar bounty provisions of the act were unconstitutional because congress had no power under the constitution to create or award such bounties and on the ground that taxes imposed on the people for the payment of such bounties were not levied for public purposes. Concerning the reciprocity section, Mr. Smith claimed that it was unconstitutional because it was a delegation of the executive power to the legislature.

Edwin B. Smith of New York, counsel for Charles Sternbach et al., followed. He made the same contentions as those made by Mr. W. Wickham Smith and quoted many authorities in support of his argument. He claimed that the act as a connected whole and each of the provisions questioned, were so interwoven with the whole act that they could not be picked out and held to be unconstitutional and the remainder of the act invalidated.

The argument of Mr. N. W. Bliss for Marshall, Field & Co. vs. Clark, collector at Chicago, was prolific with legal citations in support of his contentions. He made the same allegations against the constitutionality of the bill as those made by the gentlemen who preceded him. Arguments are continuing to-day.

QUARANTINE SUSPENDED.

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 1.—As some dissatisfaction exists in British Columbia regarding the regulations about the inspection and quarantine of cattle entering for local consumption from the United States, the dominion government has decided to suspend, during the winter months, the part of the regulations requiring that cattle be quarantined 90 days before entering the province.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

La Grange, Ind., Dec. 1.—After twenty hours deliberation the jury brought in a verdict, finding Martin Hall guilty of murder in the first degree, and fixed the punishment in the penitentiary for life. Hall was charged with poisoning Sheridan Hughsn, on September 15, on evidence wholly circumstantial.

SECRETARY FOSTER.

His Condition Is Such as to Alarm His Friends

Washington, Dec. 1.—The continued illness of Secretary Foster excites some uneasiness among his friends. He is much improved to-day but it is known that during last week his condition was such as to cause apprehension.

Yesterday, too, he was very unwell and he had what his friends term a "bad day." To-day was a "good day." He is unable to sit up and only the most urgent matters are brought to his personal attention.

HE'S OUT FOR FORAKER.

Col. Taylor Wants to See Sherman Defeated.

A Nice Little Republican Row Springing Up Which May Cause Trouble in the Future.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The fact that Col. Taylor is disposed to take a hand in the senatorial fight in behalf of Gov. Foraker is made the basis for a very sensational story which is being telegraphed out of Washington about a row between Col. Taylor and Secretary Foster.

The trouble between the Bedford congressman and the secretary of the treasury occurred early last summer. It came about over the appointment of J. B. Jones as postmaster at Hudson. About ten days after the appointment Secretary Foster wrote to Taylor and asked him to withdraw his recommendation in order that another man might be appointed.

Mr. Taylor grew indignant at the suggestion. Jones had performed elegant service during the Apache war and had been promoted on the battle field. He was a close friend of Taylor's and while the two were boys had saved the later from drowning.

Col. Taylor resented the idea of "turning him down" and his correspondence with Foster on the subject was acrimonious and spirited. Taylor refused to yield and Jones retained the Hudson postoffice.

It resulted in a rupture of the entente cordiale between Taylor and Foser and in fact all relations between them are now at an end.

Col. Taylor says, however, that this had no effect on his attitude in the senatorial fight. He has always been against Sherman, but supposed that the members of the legislature would settle the senatorial question. He said Friday, however, that if it was the proper thing to "declare himself," he is ready to announce that he is for Foraker and will do everything in his power to secure his election.

KNOCKED OUT.

The "Black Pearl" Badly Punished in a Fight Last Night.

San Francisco, Dec. 1.—Harris Martin, the "Black Pearl" of Minneapolis, and Ed Phinney, better known as "Benny" of Boston, colored middleweights, fought to a finish at the California Athletic club last night for a purse of $1,500.

The men slugged at close quarters in the first three rounds, the Pearl securing two knockdowns in the first, one proving nearly a knockout.

Benny retaliated, however, by knocking the Pearl down in the second round. Benny missed numberless openings which the Pearl carelessly left in his rushes, and though of superior weight and reach, and of good hitting power, he seemed disposed to make a slow fight.

The Pearl, on the other hand, tried hard to finish Benny with his right, but the end of the thirteenth round found honors about even.

At the close of the twenty-second round Benny sent the Pearl to the ropes dazed with the left in the mouth, and punched him in the succeeding round until the Pearl was groggy. The Pearl freshened but the fight progressed slowly until the twenty-fifth round when Benny started in and punched him about the ring with blows on the head until the Pearl fell. He refused to come to time for the next round and the fight was given to Benny.

A CURIOSITY SHOP.

Annual Report of the Dead Letter Office.

Misdirected Letters, Packages of Al Descriptions, "Sawdust" Circulars and Many Other Things of Interest.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The annual report of D. P. Leibhardt, superintendent of the dead letter office, covering the operations during the past year, has been submitted to the postmaster general.

There were received during the year 6,829,460 pieces of original dead mail matter, an increase of 311,409 pieces over the previous fiscal year.

In addition to this number there were also received 170,600 letters without valuable inclosures which had been returned to the writers, but failing of delivery were again sent to the dead letter office.

These, together with the 287 letters held for postage and 4,035 letters of foreign origin on hand, make the total 7,004,382. Of the unclaimed and undelivered mail matter received during the year 422,639 letters were misdirected; 65,943 being of foreign origin, while there was a decrease of 23,130 in those of domestic origin.

The total number of letters entirely blank and without any superscription was 27,677. Among them were frequently found letters of business men containing money, drafts, checks and other valuable commercial paper. Of the domestic letters misdirected the addresses of 65,943 were corrected; 13,008 failing of delivery were returned to the dead letter office.

The total number of letters "held for postage" was 104,673, an increase of nearly five per cent. Of this number 42,648 were letters to ficticious addresses and largely correspondence relating to what is known as "green goods" or "saw-dust" swindles, many of them containing money for the purchase of these fraudulent goods.

Of 80,153 domestic parcels containing jewelry, books, clothing, etc., 6,531 were misdirected, 17,428 were without addresses; 20,223 contained money amounting in all to $47,983. Of these 21,183 containing $26,759 were delivered to owners, while 9,040 with $11,223 were undeliverable.

Thirty thousand three hundred and twelve letters were found to contain drafts, checks, notes, deeds, mortgages, etc., representing $1,862,263, while 41,288 contained paid and canceled obligations. Three thousand one hundred and sixty-six contained lottery tickets, 74 per cent. of which were received during the first four months of the year and were declared unmailable. Usually the dead letter office receives during the year something like 12,000 letters containing lottery tickets.

It is estimated that 2,000,000,000 ordinary domestic letters were sent through the mails during the past fiscal year. The total increase of all matter received in the dead letter office was but 311,000 pieces, while the increase in letters alone sent through the mails was nearly 150,000,000.

THE OHIO BOUNDARY LINE

It Is Not a Great Way from Being Correct.

Prof. Mendenhall Has Made His Final Report.

Both States Will Be Asked to Jointly Locate the Line—Union City the Only Important Place in Dispute.

Columbus, O., Dec. 1.—Prof. T. C. Mendenhall of the United States coast and geodetic survey, and Secretary A. A. Graham of the Ohio Historical society, who have been investigating the question as to the true location of the boundary line between Ohio and Indiana, have submitted their reports to Attorney-General Watson and Gov. Campbell.

Prof. Mendenhall has been acting under instructions from his department at Washington, while Secretary Graham was appointed by Gov. Campbell to look up the records in behalf of this state.

The reports were not made public, as Prof. Mendenhall desires to show the Indiana authorities the courtesy of an official notification before the matter is given to the press.

Enough was learned, however, to disprove the sensational statement made a few weeks ago, that the present line was so far out of the way as to take Fort Wayne and other Indiana cities, as far west into the boundaries of Ohio.

The report will show, however, that the line is somewhat crooked and probably a mile too far east at some points and a similar distance too far west at others. The calculations of Prof. Mendenhall show that the line, which is the accepted boundary, is only incorrect so far as the crude instruments used in surveying in early days deviated from the proper direction.

The needle in an old-time compass would occasionally slip sidewise far enough to cause an error of several hundred yards within the distance of 20 or 30 miles. Taking this into consideration the present line may be a mile or so out of place.

As Union City is divided by the present line it may be taken into either state when a true line is established.

Prof. Mendenhall's report will recommend that the legislature of the two states act in conjunction in taking proper action to re-establish a boundary line.

CYRUS W. FIELD DYING.

Such is the Opinion of His Close Friends.

The Great Financier Reported to be Sinking.

The Strain of the Past Few Days Has Been More Than He Could Stand—A Stain on the Family Name too Great a Burden.

New York, Dec. 1.—It is believed that Cyrus W. Field is dying. Dr. Fuller stated this morning that there was no change in Mr. Field's condition since last night.

Another physician, whose name could not be obtained, is reported as saying that Mr. Field was sinking rapidly.

David Dudley Field has been at the house all morning. Mr. M. K. Jessup, who called, said on leaving that Mr. Field was not likely to live through the day.

Mr. Sidney Dillon also called at Mr. Field's house. He too said that Mr. Field was very low.

BOASTED BRITISH SOLDIERS.

The Verdict in the Manipur Case Gives General Satisfaction.

London, Dec. 1.—The St. James Gazette, referring to Captains Boileau and Burcher, who have had their names removed from the list of officers of the British army for neglect of duty at Manipur in March last, says that the sentences ought not to surprise the public. The Gazette adds that though these sentences are severe, "we cannot say that they are not deserved. Mrs. Griswood's narrative evidences that the retreat was really a disorderly stampede. It was not made to save her life; on the contrary, she was left to save herself until the fugitives recovered from their panic."

GOSSIP FROM FINDLAY.

Lodge of Sorrow to be Held by the Elks.

Suit Against the Nickel Plate—Knights of Pythias Going to Perrysburg—The Pressnell Family Reunion.

Findlay O., Dec. 1.—(Special)—Uncle Dick Pressnell is preparing for a family reunion on Christmas day, at which time ten children with their families are expected to gather round the festive board. The children at present are scattered all over the west. Two have arrived from Dakota already.

Lodge of Sorrow.

Findlay lodge, No. 75, B. P. O. E., will hold its annual lodge of sorrow at the First English Lutheran church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Hon. E. T. Dunn will deliver an appropriate memorial on the life of Wm. R. McKee, a member of the lodge, who died within the year.

Suit Against the Nickel Plate.

The case of Eli W. Repple, administrator of Samuel Repple vs. the Nickel Plate railroad, is on trial in common pleas court before Judge Norris, who is helping Judge Johnson to clean up the docket. There are two courts in session. The above case is a suit for damages, as Repply was run down and killed by a Nickel Plate train at Stewartsville about a year ago.

Going to Perrysburg.

The two K. of P. lodges in this city will probably run an excursion to Perrysburg to witness and assist in instituting the new lodge at that point Wednesday.

A Plucky Sheriff Prevented a Bloody Deed.

Charles Birsow, Locked Up on the Gravest of Charges, Was the Man so Badly Wanted by the Angry Mob.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 1.—The county jail, situated in the center of the city, was surrounded by a mob of 300 infuriated people shortly before midnight last night thirsting for the blood of Charles Birsow ,who is confined within its walls.

The man is an all-round criminal, and his latest crime was an outrageous assault on a little girl named Blanche Staton, seven years of age, living in the northeast part of the city.

A few people gathered in the rear of a saloon in the same portion of the city and this was soon added to. A descent was made upon the jail by fifty sturdy fellows and in the march a force of 200 men joined.

The jail, a flimsy old structure, was easily entered, but the mob got no further than the strong doors of the office. At one time they were upon the point of going into the jail with the blows of sledge hammers and prying of crow bars, but the sheriff and a posse of officers cleared the room by a hard effort.

Once dispersed the backbone of the gang weakened and from then on only cries of "We want the brute," "Lynch him," "Give him to us," etc., were heard. The office again filled, but there was no further attempt at breaking into the body of the jail.

Twenty minutes after the first attempt the jail was surrounded by officers. The ringleaders held another meeting within two blocks of the jail a few minutes later, but made no further attack.

A force of several hundred masons with a lot of pork packers have organized in the southern part of the city and trouble may yet follow.

WILL BURN OIL.

Grasser & Brand Brewing Company Arranging for Its Use.

The Grasser & Brand Brewing company is preparing to burn oil at the plant on St. Clair street. A gang of men are at work to-day excavating for an immense underground tank for the storage of fuel oil. The company is using coal at present.

Several people made inquiry at the City Natural Gas office yesterday as to the meager supply of gas, and they were instructed to lay in a supply of coal so as to be prepared for an emergency.

BEN BUTLER IS DYING.

Such Are the Reports from Lowell.

Taken Sick Some Time Ago a Serious Cold Has Added to His Complications.

New York, Dec. 1.—A special to the World from Boston says the illness of Gen. Butler is very serious.

Every effort has been made to keep the matter secret, but it can now safely be said that the gravest doubts of his recovery are entertained by those who are in a position to know most about his condition, and some of them assert that he will never again be able to leave his house.

The general, who is lying at his home in Lowell, took a serious cold a few weeks ago. He has been under the constant care of physicians ever since. He sits up for awhile every day and then lies down to try to sleep. But he gets no better.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Criticism Extraordinary.

To the Editor: A little time ago the dramatic reporter on the Blade announced that hereafter he was not going to praise everything good, bad and indifferent as had been done formerly by that paper. He didn't say he should slash everything by way of change, but that he should give the performances just what "he" deemed they deserved, irrespective of the verdict of the audiences. Soon after this wonderful promise Miss Gale and her company appeared and this critic mentioned her supporting actor as "the man who played the opposing role to Miss Gale," and told his readers that the nephew of Edwin Booth (a member of the company) "showed that he inherited much of his uncle's talent." Of Rhea's rendition of "La Czarina," he said "the public were disappointed that she did not appear in the lighter and gayer roles, and her audiences missed the gorgeous gowns in which she had formerly arrayed herself."

Inasmuch as Rhea never played to crowded houses in Toledo until she assumed queenly roles like the Empress Josephine and Catherine I of Russia, and inasmuch as she never before gowned herself so magnificently as she does in these plays and never before wore lovelier stage garments than the ones this "critic" assumes to criticise, it would seem that this donkey with an owl's head dosn't know what he is talking about.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Bostonians, Still Alarm and Coming Minstrels.

The Bostonians presented Robin Hood to a large and fashionable audience at the Wheeler last evening.

Robin Hood, though a comic opera, is a pleasing departure from the beaten path of such productions. The story is a splendid one, and is translated in keeping with the author's version. It has not been revamped and worked over in order that a few jokes of the times and songs of the day may be introduced. Aside from this delightful feature the performance last night was relished for other reasons. The music is classical, not overdone, but with that melody that can be appreciated by all, and was rendered to perfection. The cast is a superior one, and all who were so fortunate as to secure a seat last night enjoyed a rare treat.

Miss Grace Reals of this city was with the Bostonians last season, appearing as "Annabel." She was in attendance at the play last night and greatly enjoyed listening to the opera in which she took so prominent a part last season.

The Still Alarm.

A small but highly pleased audience was in attendance at the People's last night. The Still Alarm was the attraction, and it is probably one of the strongest productions appearing at the People's thus far this season.

The plot is laid in New York city, and though the story is a conventional relation of prosperity and adversity of life in the great metropolis, it is clean and thoroughly devoid of any reference to the slums and the loathsome parts so often made a part of these dramas.

The feature of the entertainment is the realistic manner in which the life of a fireman in great city is portrayed. This scene opens on the interior of an engine house, showing the sleeping apartment, with the brass slide rods, stalls, electric alarm appliances; nothing is omitted. The splendid effect thus produced is greatly increased when the department returns from a fire. The engine is backed in the harness "set" and the horses turned in their stalls, and the laddies, after arranging everything for the night, turn into their bunks. Soon an alarm of fire is turned in, the horses rush to their places under the harness, the boys slide down the pole dressing on the way, a snap or two, and the puffing department is off again.

The cast is well adapted to the piece, and no doubt the People's will do the business of the season this week.

Primrose and West's Minstrels

Will be at Wheeler's next Thursday evening. Mr. Brady received a dispatch yesterday from Manager Truss of the minstrels saying that they had engaged Billy Emerson, and he would appear with the troupe here. Speaking of Primrose and West the Kansas City Times says:

Primrose and West's minstrels opened a brief engagement at the Gillis opera house last night. There was a big audience, and it went home delighted. The organization is the best of its kind seen here this season.

Two startling novelties, and pleasing as they are startling, have been added this season to the older features of the show. These are the Baroni brothers and the musical blacksmiths. The Baronis are a surprise. As acrobatic contortionists they have no superiors. The elder does a flop, indescribable in its ease, grace and apparent impossibility, which he declares that no other man in the world can do. It is easily to be believed that he tells the truth. The musical blacksmith act is done by Drummond and Stahley, who have succeeded in inventing something new and pleasing in the musical moke line.

Primrose's song and dance, "The Swell," the march of the red hussars, the electric light effects, the eccentric dancing in a sketch called Log Cabin Neighbors, and the knock-about eccentricities of the Big Four, although not new, were good. The first part was beautifully set and contained as much new humor as the audience expects and considerable good singing. The best of the vocal numbers was a simple but tuneful ballad, "Little Darling, Now Good By," sung by W. F. Oakland, a handsome young man with a sweet voice. Mr. Natus wasted his tenor on the unworthy "Always Together," thus spoiling what should have been an enjoyable number.

WORKED A GREAT SCHEME.

How Two Employes Robbed a Newspaper.

Sensational Testimony in the Trial of John White, Who Is Charged with Embezzlement.

San Francisco, Dec. 1.—The trial of John White, late business manager of the San Francisco Call for embezzlement yesterday brought out some astonishing disclosures.

White confessed that he had stolen $50,000, most of which was sunk in horse racing and speculation. He had an arrangement with the cashier by which both took from the money drawer what they wanted and then arranged the cash to fit the deficit.

White was a high roller and squandered $10,000 in a few weeks on the races.

He sunk $7,000 trying to float a patent medicine and lost $10,000 in a land deal near Death Valley.

The cash was not balanced in the office for six years, and the proprietor knew nothing of what was going on. It was only through an employ that he learned of the robbery.

SHORTAGE OF GAS.

Complaints from Consumers Continue to Come.

Gas Trustees Decide to Make No More Contracts—Two New Wells Have Been Secured—Meeting Last Night.

There appears to be quite a shortage in the supply of gas for private consumers. This is particularly true of the extremity of lines, or "dead ends." Two new wells have come in within a week, one 1,200,000 and one 2,000,000 feet, and it is hoped the supply will be better when they are connected up.

Dr. Jones presented the application of Wm. Read for a gas fitter's license. The manager at the last meeting reported adversely upon the application, and he asked that it be re-referred.

Mr. Backus objected to granting the license to a man who, at the last meeting appeared before the board intoxicated.

President Parsons did not think it fair to the manager to place the responsibility on him after he reported adversely on it once.

Dr. Jones made a motion that it be referred back, but the motion was not seconded and Mr. Read did not get the license.

The final estimate of work done by McMahon & Co., amounting to $5,062, was presented by the committee on claims.

Mr. Backus said he had indorsed the claim with the understanding that it was to be paid in certificates of indebtedness. Now, he understood, the contract called for cash.

Manager Heston stated that Mr. McMahon had intimated to him that he would take certificates of indebtedness.

The claim was ordered paid in certificates, Mr. Backus voting "No."

S. S. Walker, spokesman for a delegation of First ward citizens, said they had little or no gas. At his house they had gas but three days in two weeks. He desired to know if they were to have gas and could get a supply, or would it be necessary to return to wood. A Fifth ward lady told him to-day they had more gas than they could use up there. He wanted to know why they couldn't have a share.

Superintendent Herron, replying to a question, said the only way he could explain it was that these consumers lived on the tail end of a low pressure line. He didn't know how the matter could be improved under the circumstances.

Mr. Walker said they protested against paying their gas bills unless they got gas.

Al Graham said he had had no gas for about two weeks. A short time ago they had more gas than they could use. He believed something was the matter with the gas. There were times when they had more than enough.

Mr. Walker said it was strange that the board continued to make connections while many were receiving no gas at all. It was an imposition.

Mr. Parsons favored allowing the complainants to use larger mixers until a permanent remedy is found.

Mr. Brown said there were two causes which led to this state of affairs. The first was that the people were on an extremity of a line, and the second was that lack of funds prohibited them from taking up the dead ends and completing the plant. He favored putting on larger mixers.

Mr. Brown moved that the manager be authorized to take immediate steps to remedy the defect.

Mr. Backus moved as an amendment that the gas at the Stickney avenue school be cut off to the end that the private consumers be supplied.

The school has 16 No. 5 and 4 No. 7 mixers and this would supply several families.

The amendment was not seconded, and Mr. Brown's motion carried.

Dr. Jones said complaints came to him from certain sections of the Seventh ward regarding the lack of gas.

The final estimate of Kerlin Bros., amounting to $10,415, was presented and referred to the committee on claims.

Superintendent O'Herron presented an estimate of costs of putting down lines to make connections. He estimated that there was need of laying about 10,000 feet of pipe. It was necessary to complete the system so as to distribute the gas equally throughout the city. Referred to the committee on city plant.

The municipality of North Baltimore desire to fix prices for gas, which has heretofore been about given away, and asks Toledo for some pointers and the trustees will send their schedule of rates.

Mr. R. Skinner was granted a gas fitter's license.

Residents of Walbridge avenue demand a line laid as per agreement, for which the money was advanced.

Manager Heston recommended that no further contracts for gas be made, and it was adopted.

Mr. Backus presented a resolution to the effect that the manager be instructed to report the number of gas tips now in use and the amount to be annually collected for the same. The resolution was adopted, and the board adjourned.

The Use of Fertilizers on Ground for Wheat.

The experiments in the use of commercial fertilizers on wheat, made at the Ohio Experiment station, have been criticised on the ground that it is idle to expect any profitable return from fertilizers applied to a soil naturally so rich as that of the farm occupied by the station. This criticism was anticipated when these experiments were instituted, and accordingly a test, duplicating the most important features of the station test, was begun at the same time on a tract of land in Columbiana county, placed at the disposal of the station by its owner for this purpose. The soil on which this test is located has been derived from the decomposition of underlying slate, and is a light-colored clay or clay loam, of moderate productiveness, the crops of wheat grown upon it under ordinary farm management having averaged from 15 to 20 bushels to the acre. It is naturally underdrained by the cleavage of the underlying rocks, but the contour is not so uniform as that of the section devoted to similar tests at the station, and hence the results are less regular.

In bulletin No. 3 of the Ohio Experiment station for 1891 the results of the experiments for this year on the station farm are given, the general outcome being that in most cases the use of manure or fertilizers caused an absolute decrease in the product of grain, an immense growth of straw having been produced at the expense of the grain. In summing up the results of this experiment we said: "It is expected that this year's results of the duplicate experiment in Columbiana county will show better returns from the use of fertilizers than those of the station test, but it has not been possible to thresh out that experiment in season to publish its results in this bulletin."

The wheat was threshed October 17, and the results are given in the following table, the yield and increase being given in bushels per acre:

Plot No.	Fertilizer.	Yield. Bush.	Inc. Bush
1	Unfertilized	11.8	..
2	Superphosphate	16.2	0
3	Muriate of Potash	17.0	0.2
4	Unfertilized	16.8	..
5	Nitrate of Soda	19.8	1.5
6	Nitrate and Superphosphate	22.7	3.0
7	Unfertilized	21.2	..
8	Superphosphate and Potash	17.5	0
9	Nitrate and Potash	18.8	1.3
10	Unfertilized	15.7	..
11	Superphosphate, Potash, and Nitrate	21.3	5.4
12	Barnyard Manure	16.8	0.7
13	Unfertilized	16.3	..

The superphosphate was dissolved bone black, and was used in all cases at the rate of 320 pounds per acre. The muriate of potash and nitrate of soda were used in all cases at the rate of 160 pounds to the acre. The barnyard manure was used at the rate of 8 tons per acre.

This is the third crop of wheat raised in succession upon this land, the same fertilizers being applied to the same plots each year.

Upon a careful study of the results of the three harvests and of surrounding influences, it is believed that the yield of plot 1 should not be included in calculating the results of this experiment, as it is evidently far below the normal. In the case of the other plots, the increase is calculated on the presumption that if the yield of one unfertilized plot had been 14 bushels, and that of the next unfertilized one in the series 17 bushels, the natural yield of the two intermediate plots would have been 15 and 16 bushels respectively. The nitrate of soda applied to plot 5 at the rate of $3.60 per acre; the mixture of the superphosphate and nitrate, applied to plot 6, cost at the rate of $7.60 per acre, and the mixture of nitrate, superphosphate and potash, applied to plot 11, cost at the rate of $11.20 per acre, nothing being allowed in either case for labor of application. It will therefore be seen that a little more than half the cost of the fertilizer in either case must be charged against succeeding crops.

The barnyard manure makes a much poorer showing in this experiment than the commercial manure. If we value the barnyard manure at simply the price of hauling from the barnyard and spreading—say 25 cents per ton—the charge against next year's crop would be only about $1 per acre, as against $2 to $6 in the case of the commercial fertilizers; but if we were to purchase stable manure in town and haul it two or three miles, increasing its cost to a dollar or more per ton, we should lose as much on it as on the chemical manures.

THIS IS THE LAST.

The Five-Dollar Period Positively Expires with the Close of December, Those Desiring Must Avail Themselves of the Rate Now—There Will Be No Further Extension.

One thing should be clearly and distinctly stated at this time. This is positively and unequivocally the last month of the $5 treatment. Patients who desire to take treatment under this offer must avail themselves of it at once. There will be no further extension of time. Drs. Copeland and Buffett have sought to give all an opportunity of availing themselves of this merely nominal rate. They have extended the time three times, and December is the last month in which the offer holds good. All patients being under treatment or placing themselves under treatment before January 1, will be treated at the rate of $5 a month until cured.

Drs. Copeland and Buffett are permanently established in Toledo, and are in no way like some would-be specialists, with high-sounding European titles, who travel from place to place plying their nefarious traffic on the sick and unfortunate until driven out and exposed by their outraged victims.

Drs. Copelnnd and Buffett do a legitimate practice and the results are given each week in the daily papers. Such an instance is given this week in the STORY OF MRS. HIGH.

Mrs. Royal High, of number 1108 Newberry street, in speaking of her little three-year-old daughter, said:

"For a year, previous to last June, my little girl was so badly afflicted with catarrh that we were afraid it would eventually cause her death. Her head was in a terrible condition. The nose very sore and stopped up continually; so much so that for weeks at a time she was not able to breathe through it, and could not get to sleep until I would, by the use of salves, or vaseline, get the nostrils cleared out a little.

"Her eyes became very much affected.

Mrs. Royal High's Baby Girl.

Whenever she caught a little cold, which seemed to be nearly all the time, they would become so inflamed and painful that she could not stand the light. For days at a time I would have to keep the blinds and shutters closed—making it so dark that I know it affected my own health—for the least light would cause the poor little sufferer to cry with pain. Her appetite was very poor, and instead of growing stronger as she should at her age, she was gradually failing.

"I was persuaded to take her to Drs. Copeland and Buffett, to see if they could not help her, and now cannot feel grateful enough for what they have done, for my dear little child

IS PERFECTLY WELL.

"Very soon after placing her under treatment she began to improve. Her appetite and strength returned. The inflamation of the eyes totally disappeared and she became a happy child, with a desire for play, which she had never had before, owing to her sickly condition.

"I felt afraid that her trouble would return should she catch cold, but am very thankful to say that such is not the case. It has now been four months since she has had treatment or taken medicine, and during that time, though she has taken cold once or twice, there has not been the slightest return of her old trouble."

A COLUMN OF SMILES.

A man while fishing suddenly fell into the water. A fellow-fisherman of benevolent aspect promptly helped him out, laid him on his back, and then began to scratch his head in a puzzled way.

"What's the matter?" asked the bystanders. "Why don't you revive him?"

"There are 16 rules to revive drowned persons," said the benevolent man, "and I know 'em all; but I can't call to mind which comes first."

At this point the rescued man opened his eyes and said faintly: "Is there anything about giving brandy in the rules?"

"Yes."

Dr. David Morton tells a good war story on Dr. Savage, of the American Bible society, who was a strong union man, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Just after the battle of Perryville, in October, 1862 ,Dr. Savage was at one of his appointments to baptize some children. There was a large crowd, and a sturdy southern matron brought her four children to the altar. "Name this child," said the union preacher, laying his hand on the boy's head. "Simon Bolivar Buckner," was the reply, which caused a smile to come over the congregation, but the brave preacher went on with his duty. "Name this child," taking the next in order. "Pieres Gustave Toutant Beauregard," and the smile grew into a snigger, while Dr. Savage became red in the face. He baptized the young namesake of the great engineer-soldier and went on with the ceremony. "Name this child," he gasped, reaching for the third. "Albert Sydney Johnston," came the answer. The smile became audible and the preacher apoplectic. Heaving a sigh of relief, he took the fourth child, a little girl, whose gender he fondly supposed would preclude a continuation of heroic reproduction, and said: "Name this child." "Mary Stonewall Jackson Lee," came a response that set the congregation in a roar, while the union parson thought he had held in his arms the whole southern confederacy.

"I didn't take it, boss," said Frost. "I don't know nothin' about it."

"It was found in your possession," remarked the justice.

"The policeman took it off my shoulder," was the reply, "but as sure as I'm standing here I don't know how it got there. It must have fallen off the hook and dropped on my shoulder as I passed the butcher shop."

But the ingenuous William was held for trial, just the same.

Roland Reed tells this story of his experience with a telesime in a New York hotel to the Philadelphia Press. The telesime is an electric arrangement placed in each room and consists of a dial on which are little compartments representing the various articles that guests are apt to call for. A pointer is placed at the compartment containing the name of the article required and a button touched, which causes the bell-boy to bring what was asked for. The telesime occasionally gets out of order and registers requests for rare and curious things.

Mr. Reed was entertaining the mother of an intimate friend and showed her the workings of this odd machine. "To illustrate," he said," I will send to the office for a copy of what I know you are fond of reading'." Turning the pointer to indicate that he desired a copy of the Churchman, he complacently pressed the button. Presently a bell-boy rushed into the room bearing a copy of the Police Gazette.

Feeling that something was necessary in order to redeem the telesime's failure, Mr. Reed rushed to the dial and despairingly remarked: "Well, this never makes two mistakes! Now I'll send for something I know you like, and they make it deliciously here." Placing the pointer at a cup of tea, he once more pressed the treacherous button.

This time the bell-boy entered with a tray on which stood six cocktails.

"No."

"Any of the neighbors likely to drop in during the next hour or so?"

"I think not."

"You're alone, are you?"

"Yes. What do you—"

"Then put some cotton in your ears, Maria. I am going to shave myself with that new razor you gave me the other day."

"I think you have had as much as is good for you, dear," said her mamma.

"I want more." And Frances pouted.

"You can't have more, now; but here is a wishbone that you and mamma can pull. That will be fun. You can pull one side and I'll pull the other, and whoever gets the longer end can have her wish come true. Why, baby, you've got it! What was your wish, Frances?"

"I wish for some more chicken," said Frances promptly.

She got it this time.

MRS. NELSON DEAD,

As Is Also Little Maud McKenzie,

From Injuries Received in Saturday's Accident,

Making Nine Deaths in All Up to Noon.

Patients at St. Vincent's Doing Very Well.

The Coroner's Inquest in Progress—Some Startling Evidence Being Adduced as to the Running of Trains—The Testimony Thus Far.

Two more victims have been added since yesterday to the terrible list of dead resulting from the Lake Shore collision.

This morning at 11 o'clock Mrs. Nelson, after suffering fearful agonies, died at her home, 710 Jefferson street. She was 57 years of age and a lady highly respected by all who knew her.

Her son-in-law, Mr. Potter, was very low last night, but is reported better this morning. The terribly afflicted family has the sincere sympathy of the entire community.

Little Maude McKenzie died at St. Vincent's hospital yesterday afternoon, and the sorely afflicted mother is well nigh distracted.

The death of Mrs. Nelson makes the ninth victim of the catastrophe. The fatal steam is playing havoc with the constitution of the hapless victims.

The funeral of Mrs. Potter took place at 710 Jefferson street yesterday, and the remains were taken to Flat Rock, Mich., where they will remain for the present.

Reports from St. Vincent's are to the effect that all the patients there show signs of improvement. Mrs. McKenzie is mentally prostrated, but may recover.

Dr. Murphy and C. B. Anderson, two of the injured confined at their homes, are reported much worse this afternoon. Mrs. McKenzie, at the hospital, is said to be in the same condition as this morning.

The Coroner's Inquest.

Coroner Roulet commenced his inquest in the matter of Saturday night's wreck yesterday afternoon at the grand jury room in the court house, and will continue to hold sessions there until the causes and effects of the disaster are fully investigated.

Prosecutor Barber, with Attorney J. H. Southard ,are conducting the inquest for the state, and both railroad companies are represented by council, Mr. E. D. Potter, jr., looking after the interests of the Lake Shore road, while the F. & P. M. is represented by Attorney Draper of Detroit. Each of the railroad companies are to make a fight before the coroner in order to lay the blame on the other, if possible. The four attorneys take a turn at examining the witnesses, and this will cause the inquest to be dragged out to some length, probably all week.

Division Superintendent T. F. Whittlesey of the Lake Shore, and Wm. Schott, fireman, and David T. Lyons, engineer on the F. & P. M. engine, were examined yesterday.

Mr. Whittlesy explained several matters in regard to the running of trains in the Toledo yard and gave much general information. He stated that the double tracks of the Lake Shore company, from the Toledo station to Air Line Junction, are used by the Lake Shore, the F. & P. M., the Michigan Central, and part of the way by the Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City railway. These different railway companies run a total of 18 passenger trains east and south and 19 passenger trains west and north over these tracks each day.

He produced a time table of the Toledo yard, on the back of which are special instructions, from which he read the following rules:

"1. The Toledo yard extends from the Bycle Manufacturing company's switch on the Detroit division, and the west switches of Air Line Junction yard to the Slow Board two thousand (2,000) feet east of the east switch at Rockwell Junction. Engines and trains within the limits of the yards must proceed with caution and under such control as to be able to stop within the limits of vision. All trains within these limits will be subject to the orders of the general yard master and his assistants, and must proceed with care, expecting that other trains are immediately in advance of them. Any delayed train must protect itself instantly by the proper signals.

"Yard conductors, or brakemen, in charge of engines must keep themselves advised as to the probable time of arrival of all passenger trains, and must not use the main track within the possible arrival, time of any passenger train.

"The yardmaster and his assistants will see that passenger trains are not delayed by yardmen occupying or obstructing the main track on the time of such trains, and if from any cause they should be on the main track on the arrival of a passenger train they must at once give away and allow such train to proceed.

"Yard engines will not run between north switch at Wagon Works and Bicycle Manufacturing company's switch without special orders from Detroit division train dispatchers in each case to do so.

"2. The limits of that portion known as the passenger yard, are east to Wabash main crossing, and west to Broadway bridge. All trains and engines within these limits will be governed by the Semaphore at the east and the Interlocking Signal System at the west end of passenger yard tracks. All trains and engines within these limits must be kept under full control, so as to be able to stop in case of necessity. They must not exceed six miles per hour through crossover tracks and around sharp curves at either end of passenger yard."

"Train No. 109 on the F. & P. M.," said he, "is scheduled to leave Air Line Junction at 4:48 p. m., and train No. 6 on the Lake Shore, the Boston and Chicago special, passes Air Line Junction at 4:49. The first train stops at the Junction, but the latter does not. Both trains are scheduled to run from the Junction to the Union depot in about five minutes."

In answer to questions Mr. Whittlesey stated that he did not know the exact distance between these points, but thought that it was about two miles. This schedule time, he said, required the trains to run at about thirty miles per hour from the Junction to the Broadway bridge, which is the limit of the passenger yard, where they are required to slow down.

He had no personal knowledge of the condition of affairs at the time of the wreck, and had not visited the scene.

"As a railroad man, Mr. Whittlesey," inquired Mr. Draper, "if freight train No. 56 left Air Line Junction at 4:50 p. m., and if passenger train No. 2 also left at 4:50 and No. 105 at 4:52, and No. 6 at 4:53, was it not the duty of the yardmaster to inform the conductor of the F. & P. M. train of the fact before sending him ahead?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Whittlesey.

In answer to inquiries from Mr. Potter, the superintendent explained the handling of trains in the yard, and stated that although the schedule time of trains required running at a speed of 30 miles per hour inside the yard, it was the duty of engineers to keep their trains under such control as to be able to stop within the limits of vision, and it was also their duty to always proceed with caution and protect their train in every manner possible.

Mr. Barber asked him if the time schedule of the Toledo yard was made up with reference to any city ordinance regulating the rate of speed.

Mr. Whittlesey answered that no municipal control of speed had ever been taken into account in Toledo, and if any such ordinances existed he did not know of it.

"Don't all trains usually run at a rate of 25 miles per hour through that tunnel?" asked Mr. Draper.

"I will not admit so broad a statement as that," answered Mr. Whittlesey, "but have no doubt that trains have run through the tunnel that fast."

This concluded the superintendent's testimony, and William Schott, the fireman on the F. & P. M. engine, was the next witness called.

Fireman Schott's Testimony.

Schott is a young man 23 years old, and stated that he had been firing on this road for two years. He had only been running into Toledo, however, for two weeks. Leaving out the questions, his testimony was as follows:

"We were late at Air Line Junction, but I do not know how much. We stopped there, but I cannot say how long. I was on my seat on the left side of the engine at Air Line Junction, and did not get down until after we passed through the tunnel and sighted danger ahead. There was not a word spoken between the engineer and myself from the time we left Air Line Junction until we struck. Both of us were keeping a sharp lookout ahead. All was clear until we got into the tunnel, which was full of steam and smoke. Just as we came out on the other side I saw a man swinging a white light in the middle of the track, and I just slid from my seat to the deck of the engine when we struck. I saw the engineer set the air brakes, and neither of us left the engine until it stopped. Our engine ran into the coach of the other train up to the sand box, a distance of about twelve feet.

"We were going at a speed of about twenty miles per hour through the tunnel, and did not see any lights or the other train until we passed through. Then I saw the man swinging the white light. He appeared to be about a car length from the opening of the tunnel, and the other train was about two car lengths back of him. After we struck I stayed by the engine until the trains were pulled apart, and then I helped at the wreck the best I could."

Schott was asked many questions by the different attorneys as to how far lights and cars could be seen on that night, but they failed to confuse him, and he stated that he could see about a quarter of a mile ahead. He did not know that he could not see through the tunnel until they were into it. He also stated that he did not know there was a train ahead, and that the engineer had shut off steam at the Swan creek bridge some distance before reaching the tunnel. He thought the steam in the tunnel came from the steam heating apparatus of the Lake Shore train. The rear coach of that train was also obscured by steam. He did not see any lights on the rear car of the Lake Shore train.

Engineer Lyons.

David T. Lyons, engineer on F. & P. M. train No. 109, was the next witness, and his testimony was the same on all points as that of his fireman, but he gave considerable more information. The attorneys questioned him back and forth, but his story in substance was as follows:

"We arrived at Air Line Junction at 4:55 Saturday night, nearly eight minutes late. I pulled out of there after receiving the signal from the conductor and switchman and getting the target. I gained a velocity of about 30 miles per hour at the Swan creek bridge, where I shut off steam. We run down to the tunnel in about three minutes and went through at a speed better than 20 miles per hour. Before reaching the tunnel we saw no lights or obstructions, and as the tunnel was full of steam and smoke I could not see beyond. After passing through the tunnel I saw a man in the middle of the track swinging us down with a white light. At the same instant I also saw the steam around the coach ahead. I put on the air brakes full but had no time to do anything more before we struck, and I went down there expecting instant death. Neither the fireman or myself left the engine."

He stated that he thought he could have stopped in time if the man had signalled him from the other end of the tunnel. He considered that a train such as his, going 20 miles per hour, could be stopped in about 900 feet. As it was, the man with the light was about a car length from the tunnel, and the train was about three car lengths from the same point. He couldn't see through the tunnel, and when out on the other side did not see any lights on the rear end of the Lake Shore train.

He also stated that he did not know whether No. 6 was in front or behind him. "I never get any information as to other trains at the Junction," said he.

Lyons was also questioned as to lights, and stated that he could have seen lights a quarter of a mile ahead at least, but saw no such lights between the Junction and the tunnel.

This concluded the inquest for the afternoon, and Engineer Lyons was again placed on the stand this morning.

This Morning's Testimony.

The coroner continued his inquest today, commencing at 9 o'clock this morning. Mr. George C. Green, of Buffalo, general counsel for the Lake Shore road, was also present and took a hand in examining witnesses in the interest of his company.

Engineer Lyons, of the F. & P. M. train, was again placed on the stand and his examination continued. The testimony of yesterday was repeated to a large extent, and the principal new point disclosed was in regard to a red light which was seen by the engineer and fireman after they left Air Line Junction. "The only word I had with my fireman after we left Air Line Junction," said Lyons, "was when I saw a red light ahead and I said, 'Billy, what's that light there?' He answered that it was a switch light."

Mr. Green at once took this up and made an effort to show that the engineer couldn't tell whether it was a switch light or the tail light of a train. After considerable questioning Lyons stated that the light was a red light to the left of the track; he thought about eight feet from the center of the track he was on.

Mr. Green asked many questions, and in numerous different ways, but all the information Lyons had was that he first saw it about 900 feet ahead; it attracted his attention because it was brighter than others, and he afterwards passed it. He did not think it was a main line switch but a side track.

"You did not think it was anything you had to do with, did you?" asked Mr. Draper.

"No, sir."

"How long did you see it?"

"I saw it until the engine cut it off."

"You passed it?"

"Yes, sir. I passed it."

"Was it the rear end of a train?"

"No, sir, it was not."

In answer to other questions from Mr. Draper, Mr. Lyons said that he was 41 years old, married, lived at Saginaw with his family, and is chief engineer of the Locomotive Engineers' Brotherhood at that place.

"What speed are you required to run to make your schedule time from Air Line Junction to Toledo?" asked Mr. Draper.

"Greater than 30 miles an hour."

"How far can you see an object, such as a tie on the track, at night?"

"About 200 feet."

"What speed would it be necessary to run at in order to stop in that distance?"

"About 10 miles an hour."

"At this speed how long would it take to run from Air Line Junction to Toledo?"

"About 15 minutes."

At this point the question of the distance between these two points was settled by Mr. Canneff, who stated that it was exactly 10,115 feet.

"Is it customary in the Lake Shore yard to run so as to be able to stop within the range of vision?" continued Mr. Draper.

"No, sir."

"Under whose control do trains run in this yard?"

"Under the yardmaster of the Lake Shore road, and I understood by the rules that if there was any obstruction on the track that I would be warned in time by the proper signals."

Considerable of this and other testimony of the engineer was repeated over and over again at the request of the different lawyers, so that the examination occupied considerable time.

At the conclusion of Engineer Lyon's testimony the fireman, William Schott, was recalled, and Mr. Green inquired of him regarding the conversation between the engineer and himself. He stated that the engineer asked him what that light was and he answered that it was a switch light.

He also located the light about six or eight feet to the left of the track they were on. When asked why he did not mention this conversation yesterday he said he didn't think of it.

In answer to Mr. Draper's questions Mr. Schott stated that he had seen the same red light there before, and that it was not the tail light of any train.

Conductor Hunter.

The next witness was William R. Hunter, conductor of the F. & P. M. train. He is an elderly man, lives at Saginaw, has been in the railroad business for 30 years, has been conductor on passenger trains of this road for 13 or 14 years and for the past three years has run 109 in and out of Toledo three times a week.

After defining the duties of a conductor he stated that on last Saturday at Monroe he had told the engineer of his train that he had passengers for Lake Shore No. 6, and he wanted to connect if possible. His train was nine minutes late at Air Line Junction, and here he learned from the agent that No. 6 had passed a few minutes before. He did not think that the engineer knew of this fact. He saw that the target at the Junction was all right and gave the signal to go ahead. Thought the train was going about 20 to 25 miles an hour when approaching the tunnel.

"At that time I was in the mail car," said he, "and my first intimation of anything wrong was when I felt the air brakes put on hard. The car I was in was in the tunnel at the time I was staggered by the shock of the brakes, and before I could recover was thrown backwards over a pile of mail bags by the force of the collision. As soon as I got out I saw that my brakeman protected the rear of my train by going back up the track to the other side of the tunnel with his signal lights. The rear car of my train was about three car lengths from the east end of the tunnel. I looked for rear end lights on the Lake Shore train but could find none."

He had noticed when the steam was shut off in the vicinity of the Swan creek bridge, and also stated that it was customary for Lake Shore trains as well as his own to go through that tunnel at a speed of from 25 to 35 miles an hour.

Brakeman Hall.

Theron A. Hall, brakeman of the F. & P. M. train, was next examined, but very few important points were brought out by his testimony.

He did not know what time they were at Air Line Junction. Thought they were running about 28 miles an hour at the Swan creek bridge, and about 20 miles an hour at the tunnel. He was in the rear coach and felt the air brakes, and, immediately after, the shock of the collision. He then quieted some of the passengers and at once took his signal lanterns and started back up the track, passed through the tunnel, and about 100 feet further. Here he stayed for three-quarters of an hour, and in that time flagged three hand-cars and a pony engine. He was then relieved by the wrecking crew.

In answer to questions as to the state of the weather he said the night was clear, and he could see as far as Air Line Junction; saw a hand-car a mile off, and could have seen a tail-end bull's-eye light that distance. He thought the rear end of his train when stopped by the collision was about five car lengths from the tunnel.

This concluded the testimony for the morning, and after the dinner recess the inquest was continued at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Assignment of Cases—New Members Admitted to the Bar—Grand Jury Sworn and Instructed.

Judge Ricks at 10 o'clock this morning opened the December term of the United States district court in the Federal building. There was a large attendance of legal lights interested in the assignment of cases, and the following were upon application admitted to practice in the United States district courts: Julius H. Tyler, Toledo; Carl H. Beckham, Toledo; Joseph M. Bever, Fostoria, and W. F. Duncan, city solicitor, Findlay.

In the assignment of law cases the suit of the Crane Creek Shooting club vs. the Cedar Point club was taken up and the decree admitted for defendant, granting title, etc.

The following are the assignment of cases for trial by jury:

J. W. Foll vs. C., J. & M., default.

Elmer Hollibaugh vs. Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, dismissed.

William F. Gates vs. Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, continued.

James M. Ashley, jr., vs. Am. Midland Railroad company, et al., postponed.

Israel Graham v. Leander Pain, trial.

A. Potter v. Blue Creek township, postponed.

J. W. Portz et al. v. City of Findlay, trial next week.

Peter Breit v. Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., et al., dismissed.

Ellen C. Osterholt, admx. v. Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., leave to file demurrer.

Petroleum Fuel Co. v. Syndicate Oil & Fuel Co., trial.

Charles C. Conroy v. Lima Oil Co., trial.

Charles F. Heseman admr., v. Pennsylvania Co., settled at defendant's cost.

Following is the grand jury as sworn in and instructed: William Denman, foreman, Westerville; Jacob Stark, Findlay; John A. VonBehren, Stryker; Lorenzo Chapin, Berlin Heights; Reuben Turner, Avery; O. S. Ely, West Unity; David Stewart, Van Wert; Henry Wonderly, Mark Center; John Donaldson, Findlay; James T. Ashton, Bryan; John Melhorn, Lima; W. B. Lyke, Norwalk; A. J. Stenger, Antwerp; James Douglass, Ceylon; James Paul, Bryan; C. M. Keith, Toledo; Benjamin F. Southworth, Defiance; Charles Holbrook, Toledo; W. Clark, Clay Center.

Owing to the fact that a majority of the petit jurors gave reasonable excuses they were released, and it was found necessary to issue a special venire, which will be called at 2 o'clock.

More cases for infraction of the internal revenue laws will come before the grand jury than ever before in the history of the court.

NO WAR WITH CHILI.

The Big Gun Boats Will Not Be Sent to the South.

Washington, Dec. 1.—It has been decided by the naval department that the double turreted monitor Miantonomah, which is regarded as one of the most formidable vessels in the new navy, shall not leave American waters this winter. Admiral Walker left yesterday for New York. He is on his way to South America to take command of the Boston, and will receive instructions while en route.

In naval and diplomatic circles these facts are regarded as significant. It is thought that all apprehension of further difficulty with Chili is over.

TOLEDO'S NEW ATLAS.

The new Hopkins Atlas of Toledo is being delivered to subscribers, and the Bee is in receipt of its subscription copy. It is well engraved, finely printed and colored, bound with sheets backed in cloth with index tabs, together with a large index map of the city, as well as an alphabetical list of the additions and sub-divisions. It is certainly the most complete and elaborate city atlas that Toledo has ever been furnished with, and we doubt if other cities can show a more complete and perfect one, containing, as it does, all the details required to make an atlas interesting and useful, besides representing Toledo as it is to-day. The work is based on the new plats in the city engineer's office, and shows in addition thereto, not only the lots and streets in the city, but also dwelling houses, manufactories, public buildings, stores, stables, etc., together with the water mains, sewers, and fire hydrants. The houses are colored to show material of building. The public grounds, parks, cemeteries are prominently displayed and colored. The railroad stations and their different tracks and sidings are also carefully shown. Altogether it is difficult to conceive how a more complete and useful atlas could be made. The work is an indispensable one for all those who are interested in building, insuring, loaning, etc. Such works are yearly becoming more popular and in keeping with the advance of the country.

Mr. Hopkins is a civil engineer, and has published most of the principal cities of the United States and Canada during the last 20 years, and being thoroughly posted in his business, is deserving of thanks for the splendid work he has furnished Toledo.

Our "Holdfast" rubbers will not slip at the heel. J. C. PROSSER & CO.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Newburg, N. Y., Dec. 1.—The protectory building connected with the convent of the Sisters of Mercy, two miles north of this city, burned to the ground this morning. There were 240 chmaren sleeping in the building, but all got out safely. The structure was a four-story brick. Loss about $40,000.

MADE HIS ESCAPE

Boston, Dec. 1.—Saturday night Benj. Berenson, a dry goods jobber of Salem and one of the best known and trusted members of the Jewish colony here, disappeared, taking with him, it is alleged, between $10,000 and $15,000 in cash and valuables, obtained from his Hebrew brethren of all conditions and occupations.

MADE A SETTLEMENT.

New York, Dec. 1.—A meeting of the directors of the Standard Gaslight company was held this afternoon in order to attempt a settlement beween them and Wallace C. Andrews, the former president. It was reported that matters had been amicably adjusted by Mr. Andrews paying back to the company 40 per cent. of the $3,000,000 stock which he originally received for getting the charter.

PAT ELLIOTT'S CASE CONTINUED.

Columbus, Dec. 1.—The case of Patrick J. Elliott, who with his brother, William J., murdered A. C. Osborn and W. L. Hughes, was continued to the January term of court in accordance with a motion by defendant's attorneys.

TOLEDO, OHIO, DECEMBER 1, 1891.

Hope springs eternal in the breast of that Springer from Illinois.

The man who was not elected judge in the Defiance district is preparing to have the senate allow him to draw the salary.

Never before in Ohio was there a senatorial contest where both sides claimed results with such confidence as at present. Sherman and Foraker are each certain of the coveted certificate of election.

Mr. Blaine's physician, Dr. Madison Taylor, tells New York reporters that Blaine is a well man; that mental rest and bodily exercise for a term of months and not medicine cured him. That settles it. Now for 1892.

The republicans of Ohio are having a sorry time trumping up a case against Senator Brice. The distinguished attorney, ex-Supreme Judge Nash, who was selected to take the case, utterly refuses to have anything to do with it.

A Washington correspondent of a Chicago paper says Sherman is already defeated and that he probably will decline to be a candidate for the senate. That scribe is not familiar with Sherman's political methods. He is not a decliner—not this century.

The New York Sun says the election of Mills as speaker means the defeat of the democratic party in 1892. Dana commences grumbling early. The party will hardly consult his wishes as to the selection of speaker or the policy of the campaign next year. Perhaps that is why he grumbles.

The Boston Journal says preachers and teachers constitute a large class of those in Massachusetts who loan money on western farm mortgages. They must appreciate the services of the preachers and teachers "way down east" better than in the west. Very few of this class are able to save money to largely invest in mortgage securities.

The Boston Globe says a movement is on foot to utilize the mighty power of Niagara for generating an electric current that will move all the machinery of the world's fair. This is by no means impossible, and it is easily within the range of human possibility and ingenuity to so use that wonderful power—without marring the native beauty of the falls—as to supply motive power for all the great manufacturing centers of the United States. The electrical inventions of the past decade make such things possible.

France is a republic, but the paternal idea of government is too deeply rooted to be done away with in many years yet to come. The government votes the sum of 500,000 francs to assist a syndicate of workmen who have bought a coal mine which they wish to work on the co-operative plan. The government assisted in organizing a sick and pension fund for the benefit of families of the strikers, but declined to interfere, in the matter of wages, between the employers and the men employed. After all, the difference between the French government and ours in this respect is, our government legislates for the rich and France for the poor—occasionally.

A Toledo evening paper remarks:

"Every Ohio republican's warmest sympathies will go south with Secretary of State Ryan, whither he has gone to recover his health."

What is so bad about Secretary Ryan that every Ohioan, irrespective of party, cannot extend sympathy? This is the same sheet that rejoices because republicans have a majority of one on the board of park commissioners. It would not be unexpected should it class the guests at a wedding or the victims of an accident as democrats and republicans, that readers might indulge their rejoicing or their grief, accordingly. How mean it must feel when it feels that way.

The condition of the city natural gas line is such that the people of Toledo will not sanction further dissembling on the part of the trustees and other officers of that department of the city. Hundreds of citizens paid their money for the extension of the city mains upon the positive assurance of those who ought to know that the supply would be abundant. Now when there is very little gas and the people complain, they are put off with the statement that more wells will be added and the supply will be unlimited. The trustees hardly believe this story themselves, and they have no right, as public officials, to longer deceive the people. Turn over a new leaf and give the consumers the rock bottom truth. Tell it all. It is the people's line and the people have the right to know all about it.

Congressman Haynes is committed to the support of Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, for speaker. This is the privilege of Mr. Haynes, but the reason he gives for preferring Crisp to Mills is neither logical nor warranted by the facts. He says Mr. Crisp is a tariff reformer in full accord with Ohio democrats, while Mr. Mills is a free trader, not of the stuff of which Ohio democrats are made. Now, Mr. Crisp did not help the Ohio democrats in their recent campaign for tariff reform, while Mr. Mills did. Mr. Mills delivered some of the ablest speeches of the campaign. He was also the author of the tariff bill framed in spirit upon that remarkable message of Grover Cleveland, who is the typical tariff reformer of the period. It is singular that our congressman should make such a lame excuse, when no excuse is necessary, and when no excuse were better than a bungling one.

What changes a revolution or two in the wheel of fortune may bring. Less than a year ago the newspapers blossomed with descriptions and illustrations of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Field. The broad sunlight of peace and prosperity fell upon the beautiful home and men and women envied as they read. An honored man, one who had won his wealth and fame legitimately, enriching himself by serving others, surrounded by comfort and reveling in domestic happiness—what more had the world to bestow? To-day the tears are scarcely dry on the grave of his beloved wife, his idolized son is disgraced as a thief and is a mental wreck as well, his daughter is dying of an incurable disease and his own overburdened mind grows uncertain and weak with the fearful strain. How is scripture hourly verified, "we know not what a day may bring forth."

A PEACE-PROFESSING WARLIKE PEOPLE.

In a beautifully worded and elegantly rounded Thanksgiving editorial in that staid old southern newspaper, the Baltimore Sun, was this paragraph, which is suggestive of inquiry as to its truthful statement of facts:

Nor is material prosperity the only cause the people have for giving thanks. In the political government of the country sectionalism begins to disappear before the advance of common interests and common sense. Men show signs that they begin to vote according to the dictates of reason rather than animosity and prejudice. The country is now enjoying the longest period of uninterrupted peace in our history, and coupled with our thanksgiving to the beneficent Giver of all good things, there should go up a prayer that the people shall continue to enjoy the blessings of peace, and that "truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us for all generations."

"The longest period of uninterrupted peace in our history"—does it seem possible that this is true? The war of the rebellion of the states is of such recent occurrence that it has hardly passed into history, and the issues growing out of the war are still the subjects of political discussion. The men who participated in that bloody strife are yet living by hundreds of thousands, and the empty sleeve and the swinging crutch are familiar reminders of the war—such a war as pray God may never occur again.

Measured by the actual peace periods it would seem that instead of being the peace-loving, peace-preaching and, one might say, peace-practicing, nation, the United States are as quick to resort to arms as the more ready and more willing nations of Europe.

How many readers of the Bee can tell the number of wars, great and small, in which this republic has been engaged since the revolution? Besides fifteen distinctive Indian wars, including the big Seminole war which lasted seven years, there have been five figuting periods: the war with the Barbary states in 1803-'4, the war with Great Britain, 1812-'15, the Algerine war in 1815, the Mexican war and the civil war. From 1803 until 1861 the longest peace periods were between the Seminole trouble and the Mexican war, and between the latter war and the rebellion—thirteen years each, and the lesser Indian wars were of frequent occurrence even between these periods. Without a standing army of consequence the militia has frequently been mobilized into phalanxes of adamantine strength and columns of bristling steel; and the century is marked by bloody epochs which impartial history may call conflicts in the progress of civilization. We are apt to quote that immortal passage of Milton

"Peace hath her victories
No less renowned than war."—

Still, there is much rugged truth in Admiral Luce's statement that "but for war the civilization we now enjoy would have been impossible." In the strength of our own arms, the reliance upon our own resources in time of trouble, in the patriotism of our citizenship, in the ingenuity of our artisans, and in the faith in our democratic principles of equality and individual sovereignty, is the power which makes peace remarkably enjoyable and productive, and which quickly transforms the country from the paths of peace to an invincible war footing. We are peace-loving, yet peace-enforcing by the strong arm of the nation stretched forth for battle when war seemeth unavoidable.

ABOUT POSTAGE STAMPS.

Where did that ridiculous story about the government wanting a million canceled stamps collected and sent to Washington originate? Over two hundred letters have yearly been received at the department in Washington for the last twenty years asking information about the $300 prize offered for the successful collector. It would seem that a joke would race itself to death before that time. It has made no end of bother. Every office in the country has been besieged. Men and women have taken time to clip stamps from letters for importuning children. Packages are continually received at the department, on the instalment plan, 50,000 being the greatest number yet sent in one package. Up to 1884 the government sold specimen sets of its unused stamp issues, but the bother of it caused the practice to be discontinued. A Washington correspondent tells of the stamp album kept in that division of the department which is valuable, intrinsically, as well as for reminiscence, containing as it does sets of all the stamps ever issued by the government. The first stamps divided by lines of perforations were issued in 1857. The stamps of 1869 were the handsomest stamps ever issued, but their printing cost so much they were soon changed. Just now we have not the prettiest looking stamps that are stuck onto a letter anywhere in the world, but what does it matter, the letter goes and we are become accustomed to them.

What is the meaning of stopping a train "within vision?" One of the rules of the Lake Shore yards in Toledo provides that engineers must keep their trains under control that they may be stopped within vision. The engineer of the F. & P. M. road whose engine collided with the Lake Shore train Saturday night, testifies that on a clear track and on a clear night he could see a signal a quarter of a mile, easily within stopping distance. But he also testifies that the tunnel was filled with smoke Saturday night, and that he could not see through it, hence the collision. Clearly at that point and at that time "within vision" was not a safe stopping distance. The train was running at the rate of twenty miles an hour, and the superintendent of the Lake Shore testifies that the schedule time of the ill-fated train was thirty miles an hour, regardless of the city ordinance regulating the speed of trains within the city limits, and reckless of consequences to human life. Evidently the rules of the Lake Shore railway need reconstructing, but correction now will not restore the lives of the unfortunate nine who were sacrificed on the altar of criminal carelessness and recklessness and negligence.

George Washington was worth $500,000 all told, and was scolded about, somewhat, for his enormous wealth. He owned lands in Ohio which increased in valuation, greatly augmenting his resources. His will placed his property at $530,000. "But since that time how things have changed."

Said that some of the border Hoosiers feel disappointed that they are not to come in and be Buckeyes after all. We have so much fun in politics over here. That side they just have Dudley and one or two others and that's all.

Is it by design that the papers misspell his name and put it "Dryenforth," when he makes a failure of an attempted rain storm?

Beautiful weather this for the beginning of December. Where is finer climate anyway, than in northwestern Ohio?

At the Old Stand.

Within a very few days that hilarious journal the "Congressional Record" will resume publication, and its readers will find therein what the senators and representatives did not say in their deliberations.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

Jim Jeemes Blaine.

Minneapolis' jag of joy is rapidly developing into a severe case of the presidential Jim Jeemes.—Washington Post.

GATES AND CONDUCTORS.

The Aldermen Decide That They Shall Be Put on All Street Cars—Other Business.

All members were present at the meeting of the board of aldermen last evening and considerable talk was indulged in. It was largely nothing but talk, however, and most of the important matters were disposed of with but little debate.

A petition was presented from C. F. Curtis, owner of Brandon Heights, asking that enough property be condemned on the south side of Islington street to make it 60 feet wide from Fulton to Cherry. Referred to the street committee.

Mr. Graham moved to reconsider the vote by which the board last week refused to concur in the council amendments to the general street railway ordinance and require conductors and safety gates on all cars.

President Leroux displayed ability by not knowing how to put the motion, but after some assistance from the solicitor the matter was finally considered.

The amendment requiring conductors on all cars was first voted on and carried, Mr. Everett voting no.

The amendment requiring safety gates on all cars was also concurred in, Messrs. Everett and Leroux voting no.

Objections by H. P. Platt to the assessment for the sewer in Bridge street, and by M. M. Goulden for the assessments for the sewer in Wisconsin street, were presented and referred to the sewer committee.

The ways and means committee reported that no bids had been received for the three lots of improvement bonds offered, as mentioned in yesterday's Bee.

The ordinance granting to the Robisons the right to double track Lawrence avenue, Bartlett street and Nettie streets was passed. Later in the evening Mr. Peiter presented a petition against that part granting double track for Bartlett street and asked that the ordinance be reconsidered, but his motion was lost.

The resolution from the lower board directing the clerk to advertise for proposals for collecting garbage was referred back to the committee on motion of Mr. Hartford.

On motion of Mr. Potter the ordinance fixing the price of illuminating gas was amended so that the price shall be $1 instead of $1.25, and the amended ordinance was passed.

Other business from the council was adopted.

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL.

An Interesting Meeting Last Evening—Resolutions Adopted.

An interesting meeting of the Building Trades council was held at Tinners' hall last evening, lasting till midnight. The trades represented in council will put their best foot forward this coming season by adopting certain working rules, whereby all represented pledge themselves to use all honorable means to have legitimate contractors and builders recognize the working card system the council will present to them. The working card of the last season has been honored by a majority of employers, the only ones objecting being the shoddy ones who skip town every fall, leaving the lumber factory and hardware dealers to kick themselves, and to increase prices on the honest contractor to make up their losses. All the council ask is that the contractor who wishes to do business honestly, pay living wages as well as their debts, to help them out in their movement next year, and they promise to do their utmost to keep dishonest builders from under-bidding those that have monied interest and recognizing home talent in preference to imported.

Circular was read from the States Trade and Labor assembly urging the council to send delegates to the coming convention to be held in Columbus, Jan. 5, '92. The council will accept the invitation and elect two delegates at its next meeting.

Delegates reported as to trustees of water works board letting contract of certain work to Contractor Dawson, and will present the following resolution to the board at its next meeting:

Whereas, The contract recently awarded by the water works trustees promises to result in the employment of non-union labor on said contract; and

Whereas, The water works is a public institution, supported and maintained by the people of Toledo; be it

Resolved, That we, the Building Trades council, hereby earnestly urge upon the water works trustees to see to it that the contractor employs only union labor, and that home industry and skill be used alone on the work.

THOSE ELECTION RETURNS.

Hallock Had Them in His Inside Pocket.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 1.—John J. Hallock walked into the Vandebilt house at 12:30 this morning carrying in his hand a brown paper package. He handed the package to the clerk with the remark: "Please put this in the safe. It contains Welch's election returns, and we want to use them in the morning.

Mr. Hallock tarried at the desk until he saw the package deposited in the safe, then hurried into the elevator and went up stairs.

These are the returns spirited away by Supervisor Welch and about which there has been so much discussion in court and in the press.

HALF A MILLION

Disastrous Blaze In a Chicago Electric Light Works.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—The estimated losses by last night's big fire in the Chicago arc light and power company's plant are as follows:

Arc light and power company building, $100,000; dynamos, $250,000; engines, boilers, machinery and stock, $75,000; Eagle Bros., cork manufacturers, $15,000; Heinrich contracting company, $20,000; Thomas Bros., $50,000; Columbia novelty company, $2,000; John Young, silver and gold refiner, $1,500; P. Hansen, machinist, $1,500; several other small concerns, $30,000. Total, $500,000.

The insurance carried by the arc light and power company will probably cover the loss.

PEACE REIGNS.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Dec. 1.—The political prisoners in the late revolution have been released on bonds. No further trouble is expected.

Hard on St. Paul.

Kansas men as a rule are not familiar with Bible characters, but every one of them knows and admires Saint Paul. He was the man who was so strongly opposed to woman suffragists that the mention of his name makes the suffragists anxious to die and go to heaven that they may begin an argument with him.—Atchison Globe.

A Coming Question.

The good temperance women who were in session in this city yesterday desire to abolish the smoking-car on railroad passenger trains. Have men no rights that women are bound to respect?—Philadelphia Record.

OHIO AND OHIOANS.

That job of placing a bell on Mr. Brice's senatorial cat is still going begging in the state of Ohio.—Washington Post.

It is rather late in the day for Secretary Foster to pose as a "friend of labor." But it amuses him, and does nobody any particular harm.—Boston Globe.

Gov. Campbell thinks the democracy will carry Ohio in the presidential contest next year. There is nothing like being cheerful in the face of adversity, but we fear Gov. Campbell overrates the capacity of a very large part of the voting population of Ohio to receive education, just as the Courier did previous to the recent election. Ohio is the place where republicanism will take refuge after it has been driven from every other state, even including Pennsylvania. We shall never waste any more hope on Ohio.—Evansville Courier.

Foraker's scheme to get a seat in the United States senate by ousting Brice does not meet with much encouragement even among the Ohio republicans. The state committee of that party adopted a resolution to make an investigation of the case, but this was only perfunctory, and it was done to satisfy a few cranks, among them Foraker. John Sherman discouraged the proposition at the outset by informing the committee that Brice would be given the seat upon presentation of his credentials, and if he is removed afterwards it must be by an investigation in the nature of a contest. A majority of the speeches before the committee were against any action of the committee. All of which indicates that Foraker has not such a firm grip on the Ohio republicans as he thinks he has.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That the suit against Billy Cook's bondsmen will not materialize to any great extent.

That the present cold spell has a tendency to test the heating power of natural gas.

That the owners of wheels have hung them up till the flowers bloom in the spring, tra la.

That Gov. Campbell carried this congresional district by 657, notwithstanding the land-slide.

That the display of holiday goods by city merchants is alike creditable to themselves and Toledo.

That the Future Great is regaining her position as a grain center, which has been suspended for a few years.

That Toledo is as well fixed for substantial dry goods houses as any city between New York and Chicago.

That the talk relative to the pardon of Billy Cook by Gov. Campbell is founded on nothing save pure imagination.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY

Duly Celebrated at Auburndale—Remarks by Bishop Atwill and Others.

St. Andrew's day was duly commemorated at St. Andrew's church last night by the rector, Rev. Charles Scadding, assisted by Rev. W. C. Hopkins of Grace church, Rev. C. Watts of St. Mark's, Rev. J. W. Sykes of Calvary church and Bishop Atwill, who came from Buffalo to be present at the crowning service of this new parish, en route to Kansas.

The services were opened by an address of welcome by Rev. Charles Scadding, followed by brief talks in reference to St. Andrew by the Episcopal clergymen present, and Bishop Atwill, who was the founder of St. Andrew's mission at Auburndale.

The mission has become a power in and of itself, and has recently erected a building, in exceedingly good taste, which is entirely free from debt and an artistic and comfortable place of worship.

The saint for whom this day is recognized and made holy was the first disciple of Christ and afterwards an apostle, and, like his brother Peter, a fisherman. Tradition tells that after preaching the Gospel in Scythia, Northern Greece and Epirus, he suffered martyrdom on the cross at Patrae in Achaia, 62 or 70 A. D. A cross formed of beams, obliquely placed, is styled a St. Andrew's cross. St. Andrew is the patron saint of Scotland, and is also held in great veneration in Russia, as the apostle who, according to tradition, first preached the Gospel in that country. In both countries there is an order of knighthood named in his honor.

Bishop Atwill is dear to the hearts of his former parishioners and is sure to find a hearty welcome in their midst, the services last night being made doubly interesting by his presence and words of cheer.

Bishop Atwill, in his closing remarks, congratulated the congregation of the mission on their successful efforts in building up so fine a church, and blessed the place where "the sick shall be healed, the holy bonds of matrimony sealed and for the services to be held over those who will wait in Paradise for the elect of God to be made up."

ANNUAL ELECTION

For Officers of St. John's M. E. Sunday School.

The annual election of officers for St. John's M. E. Sunday school occurred last evening in the church parlors. Nearly all the members of the board were present, and an interesting meeting was the result. Reports of various committees and officers were made, showing the school to be in excellent condition in every department. The regular committee was directed to confer with the trustees in regard to a room for the proposed circulating library, which, it is expected, will soon be utilized. Election of officers resulted as follows, most of them by acclamation:

Superintendent—Mrs. M. R. Davis.
Assistants—A. B. Hood, J. W. St. John.
Secretary—Carroll J. Webster.
Assistant secretary—Miss Jennie Jones.
Treasurer—John W. Callard.
Librarian and registrar—George W. Bartlett.
Assistant—Frank Eckhardt.
Chorister—Frank H. Tanner.
Pianiste—Miss Flora Van Gorder.
Assistant—Miss Carrie Beatty.
Cornetist—V. Elmer Lott.

A resolution of thanks was extended to Mrs. F. H. Tanner for the faithful manner in which she had performed the duties of treasurer for the past several years.

As stated before in the Bee, this school enjoys the distinction of having, it is believed, the only lady superintendent in the city. The wisdom of the choice has been shown in the experience of the past four years, and re-election last evening was simply in the line of continuing the present satisfactory relations. Greater and better results are anticipated for the future, and with a harmonious corps of officers and teachers such as labor in this field, the anticipation is not without reason.

Officers were also elected last night at Albany Street Sunday school, as follows:

Superintendent—James Kewley.
Assistant Superintendent and Treasurer—H. R. Orwoller.
Secretary—Dr. Briggs.
Librarian—R. E. Hermann.
Chorister—Rev. J. C. Sinclair.
Organist—Miss Myrtle Allman.
Assistant Organist—Mrs. N. S. Lee.

SAFELY LOCATED.

F. P. Isherwood Tells of His Winter Home, San Deigo, Cal.

In four and one half days' journey from Toledo we find ourselves in San Diego, California, over the Topeka, Atchison & Santa Fe railway. A Pullman palace car can be taken at Chicago, and then get through without change and baggage checked to point of destination, with attentive porters and gentlemanly conductors, good dining stations, the best of everything, and time to eat it. Mr. Fred Harney is proprietor of all the dining rooms on the whole line, and he has an established reputation.

On our arrival here we find a city of 17,000 inhabitants. Six years ago when we were here there were only 5,000. Now there are electric lights, cable cars, paved streets, stone sidewalks, three first-class hotels, and an opera house to be finished by the first of January, called the Fisher. Mr. John C. Fisher is owner and proprietor of the Florence hotel, where we are stopping. The Florence has 200 rooms and an elevator, is situated on the Mesa overlooking the city, bay and ocean. Likewise you can see the mountains in Mexico in the distance. Cable cars run by the house. Any Toledoan wishing a pleasant home for the winter should avail themselves of locating in San Diego.

The Hotel Florence is a desirable house for its many conveniences, and is perfect in all its appintments. To-day the maximum thermometer is 68.

There is a line of steamers running between here and San Francisco every third day. F. P. ISHERWOOD.

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 23.

THE PROTESTANT HOSPITAL.

Plan Suggested That Would Increase Its Usefulness.

It has been suggested by a prominent physician and one who has seen the scheme worked successfully, that each Protestant church agree to keep up a bed or one room in the new Protestant hospital, thereby interesting each church in this much-needed convenience, and providing a means whereby a hospital could be easily and comfortably furnished without great expense to anyone concerned, the lady presidents of each church society making up the board of directors of the hospital. In fact the idea might be carried out by the different lodges and orders, each one contributing to the expense of one room, and in case a patient is able and cares to pay for his keeping, allow that money to return to the organization whose room is being occupied. A much larger and advantageous hospital could thus be arranged and one in which the general public would be interested.

Annual Meetings of Toledo Corporations Called for Next Month.

Attention is called to the large number of notices to stockholders printed elsewhere in to-day's issue of the Bee. Included are the banks and many of the other prominent corporations of the city. With one exception, the Phoenix Coal company, all of the meetings are to be held in January and but few if any of the shareholders need expect to hear unfavorable reports. The year has been at least fairly prosperous, and the outlook for the future is bright. Inspect the calls and make an entry on your diary.

He will say it is shaken and broken up into tiny drops, becomes an emulsion; there are other changes, but this is the first.

"HANDSOME IS THAT HANDSOME DOES"

The sage who spoke the above certainly told the truth. But were he living to-day, he would probably add that there are other things handsome besides handsome actions. For instance, the handsome Christmas Cards now found in every package of LION COFFEE are remarkable for their uniform beauty and worth, being finer this season than ever before. Besides these, we have many valuable engravings which we give away.

MOTH-EATEN.

I had a beautiful garment,
And I laid it by with care;
I folded it close, with lavender leaves,
In a napkin fine and fair,
"It's far too costly a robe," I said,
"For one like me to wear."

So never at morn or evening
I put my garment on;
It lay by itself, under clasp and key,
In the perfumed desk alone—
Its wonderful broidery hidden
Till many a day had gone.

There were guests who came to my portal,
There were friends who sat with me,
And clad in somberest raiment
I bore them company;
I knew I owned a beautiful robe,
Though its splendors none might see.

There were poor who stood at my portal,
There were orphaned sought my care;
I gave them the tenderest pity,
But had nothing bedide to spare;
I had only the beautiful garment
And the raiment for daily wear.

At last, on a feast day's coming,
I thought in my dress to shine;
I would please myself with the luster
Of its shifting colors fine;
I would walk with pride in the marvel
Of its rarely rich design.

So out of the dust I bore it—
The lavender fell away—
And fold on fold I held it up
To the searching light of day.
Alas! the glory had perished
While there in its place it lay.

Who seek for the fadeless beauty
Must seek for the use that it seals,
For the grace of a constant blessing,
The beauty that use reveals,
For into the folded robe alone
The moth with its blighting steals.

The change, however, proved unacceptable to a majority of the members, and now it is being changed back again to its former antique condition.

The Parisians have a new insurance scheme. Riders in cabs can, by placing a penny in the slot of a little machine in the cab, obtain a certificate which will give their friends $1,000 in case of a fatal accident, or themselves $300 in case of total disablement or $100 for partial disablement. Of course the insurance only holds good while the insured is in the cab.

The "pillars of Hercules," to which reference is so frequently made in classical literature, were Calpe, now Gibraltar Rock, and Abyla, opposite to it, in Africa, at the entrance to the Mediterranean sea. A Greek story says they were torn asunder and separated by Hercules about B. C. 1220 (while Gideon was judge of Israel). Hercules, according to popular myth, tore these rocks or mountains asunder, and hence their name.

The differences in character between the people of the various sections of Brazil, a country about as big as the United States, are very marked. The states of the equator are industrious and enterprising, but the northern states, in which the heat is oppressive and the means of life can easily be got, are languid and indolent. The natural resources of the northern section of Brazil surpass those of the southern section, and yet the southerners are more prosperous than the northerners.

A young man in Auburn, Me., who applied to the city clerk for a marriage license gave his age as 20 years, and was informed that on account of his youthfulness he would have to secure his parents' written consent before a certificate could be issued. He went out, and soon returned with a brief but pointed document: "This is to certify that my son John —— has my consent to marry Ann —— or any other woman. He is young in years, but old in devilment."

A missionary in Bengal has been doing the opium dens in the town of Rampore Bunneah. Most of the smokers he saw belonged to the laboring classes. With one accord the smokers told him that the drug dried up their bodies, and that their craving for it was such that they could not give it up. Many of the dens have a hundred patrons a day. The missionary says opium smoking in India is bringing ruin and degradation upon innumerable families, and he accuses the British government of fostering this demoralizing habit.

Said the man on the street car last night: "From 5:30 until 6:30 I never get up and give my seat to a woman, unless I think she is a clerk or working woman down town. The shoppers can't have my seat. The women must know that their husbands, fathers, brothers and lovers have to go home at about this time of the afternoon, and the women have no business to be in the men's way at this hour. No, women as a rule should not be on the cars from 5:30 to 6:30. That is a tired man's time to go home and he is entitled to a seat."

BEAUTY CAUSED HER RUIN

A Sad Story of a Pretty Girl in France.

Betrayed by the Person Whom She Loved,

She is Set Upon by a Gang of His Followers and Brutally Stabbed to Death to Prevent Her from Telling of Their Crimes.

Paris, Dec. 1.—The dead body of a pretty girl bruised and hacked almost beyond human semblance, lying in a hospital at Roubaix, points anew the old, old moral of innocence abused, and the danger of vicious companionship.

Roubaix, in the Department du Nord, that borders on Belgium, is one of the most flourishing of French manufacturing towns. Its artisans are better paid than those of other manufacturing centers, and are thus contented, prosperous and busy. With its eighty odd thousand inhabitants, Roubaix offers less inducement to the professional socialist and agitator than almost any other town in France.

Unfortunately its propinquity to the Belgium frontier, thus furnishing ready means of escape, also makes it the rendezvous of various gangs of criminals, who find it convenient to disappear into the neighboring kingdom, when the atmosphere of republican institutions and the rigor of republican justice, becomes unwholesome for them.

At Lille, six miles to the south of Roubaix, the great manufacturing center, that may be called the French Manchester, from the importance of its linen and cotton goods, lived Mimi Berthold, the daughter of Pere Berthold, one of the janitors of the university. Mimi was dowered with the gift of beauty—too often a fatal one for girls in her station—and, having relatives in Roubaix, obtained her father's consent to going there when she grew old enough to earn her own livelihood. After several other engagements she came to be waitress in the Cafe Pinel, kept by a Belgian.

As M. Pinel was a Bouxellois, he naturally attracted the custom of his fellow-citizens of "little Paris," as well as of his fellow countrymen generally.

The police are not aware at what period M. Pinel became a breaker of the law, in fact a felon, but they have discovered that for many years he has been the enterprising chief of a band of counterfeiters, and utterers of base coin, and his cafe has naturally been the headquarter for all the crooks of that section of France, as well as many who claimed domicile across the Belgian frontier.

It was to this unpromising locality that Mimi brought her beauty, her youth and virtue some five years ago. She was not only pretty, but intelligent and vivacious, and soon added materially to the number of the regular clientele.

Poor Mimi was unfortunate enough to attract the attention of the proprietor, who laid siege to the unprotected girl, and in time, succeeded in overcoming all her scruples. It thus happened that Mimi lived with M. Pinel as his wife for some time subsequent to 1886, but without being acknowledged by that title, or securing the poor credit that such an alliance would give.

As is usual in such liasison, M. Pinel soon tired of his human toy, and it was not many months before he resigned all claim upon her affections to Flamard, his first lieutenant. Flamard was not ill-natured, and in a rough lawless way, made not a bad helpmate for Mimi for several years, and all still would have been well, or ill, as the moralist might prefer to characterize the situation, had not Flamard contemplated new relations.

Not far from the Cafe Pinel was one presided over by Mme. Jouard, the widow of a soldier who had fallen. Mme. Jouard had acquired a comfortable property. Combined with her good looks, this rendered her a shining mark for impecunious suitors, chief among whom was Flamard, whose share of the gang's plunder failed permanently to enrich.

But when the lieutenant laid siege to the widow's savings, he failed to reckon with the woman whom he had accustomed to regard herself as his wife.

Mimi soon discovered Flamard's design; indeed he took little pains to conceal it, and determined that ere it was successfully carried out the entire gang should be deported to the penal settlement of New Caledonia. This was a brave resolution on Mimi's part, but she erred in carrying it into effect.

She not only threatened Flamard, who only laughed at her, but she laid her case before Leader Pinel. She urged her cause with much vehemence, and pleaded with him for the sake of his former love for her to use his influence in her behalf. Finding him obdurate, she lost her temper, and disclosed her intention of exposing the gang by revealing the location of the workshop to the authorities, and adding her own damning evidence of the guilt of the comers.

Thus poor Mimi sealed her fate. Terribly frightened at the woman's vehemence, and fearful that she would carry out her threats in any event, Pinel and his associates came to the conclusion that the woman knew too much for their safety, which demanded that she should be put out of the way.

As Mimi was waiting in the cafe on Sunday evening, at a late hour, when nearly all the customers had retired, she was suddenly set upon with knives by three of the gang who had been drinking together for an hour or more in a corner, and to whom she had paid no particular attention.

Before she could be rescued from their clutches by the other customers she was most brutally stabbed, and fell to the ground almost in a dying condition.

The police, who happened to be near at hand, at once pursued the assassins, who fired at them with revolvers, but without doing any harm. Two of the number were caught, and as one of them has confessed, giving a history of the gang and its operations, poor Mimi may be said to be avenged, as many of the offenders may now be secured, although it is feared that the leaders have escaped. The police say that the gang has been one of the most successful, as it was one of the largest in France.

TO CAUCUS ON SATURDAY.

Speakership Race is Drawing to a Close.

Crisp Seems to be in the Lead, with Mills, of Texas, a Close Second —Others Apparently Not in It.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The caucus which will decide who will be speaker of the fifty-second congress will meet Saturday.

The candidates have turned the three-quarter pole and are straightening out for the run down the homestretch. They come into the stretch in the following order: Crisp in the lead, Mills second, with Springer a close third. McMillan fourth and Hatch of Missouri, Watch Dog Holman of Indiana and Wilson of West Virginia trailing along in the rear. But the situation is complicated, the votes nebulous and predictions as to the winner are hazardous.

All the candidates admit that there are between forty and sixty members who have not committed themselves or whose preferences are unknown, and at the same time if the claims of the leading candidates are allowed, the democratic membership of the next house would approximate close to 400 instead of 235.

Crisp's friends claim over 100 and his opponents do not place his strength at less than eighty.

Mr. Mills' friends claim ninety and his opponents give him less than fifty. The other candidates keep their figures under their hat but the best information gives Springer thirty-five, McMillian twenty and Hatch the Missouri delegation of thirteen.

There are only about eighty members in town, however, and figures therefore do not count for much. The friends of Mr. Mills begin to see that they have made a bad, pehaps a fatal blunder in assailing Judge Crisp and Judge Crisp's friends on the tariff question. Some of Mr. Mills' intemperate supporters, like the New York Times, wanted to read Judge Crisp's friends out of the party. Although the latter, governed by the wishes of Judge Crisp, have abstained from fighting back, they are nevertheless hot under the collar, and the chances are if Judge Crisp should fail to capture the prize his suporters would be solid against the Texan.

Congressman Geary of California, who arrived here to-day and who is a Mills man, pointed out this fact to some of Mr. Mills' friends to-day in the most emphatic language. A prospective policy, he declared, would not do. The probabilities are they will act on his advice. If they don't Mr. Mills, who occupies a strong position, would be seriously crippled.

Mr. Mills claims he is the logic of the situation, and one of his friends to-day in conversation illustrated the argument for his election in this way: "If the Ohio republicans," said he, "had built a protection platform as high as the heavens, and if McKinley, the accredited champion of protection, had been a candidate before the convention and they had failed to nominate him to stand on that platform, everybody would have said that the republicans of Ohio were equivocating with the tariff. Just so with Mr. Mills, the author of the tariff reform measure on which the democrats went to the country in 1888, as a candidate for speaker. The failure of the democrats of the next house to elect him would be construed by the country as a refusal to continue the fight upon the lines on which we were defeated in 1888."

The friends of Judge Crisp, on the other hand, argue that the democrats are united and harmonious on the tariff question; that all the leaders, Cleveland and Hill, Carlisle and Gorman, say there is no division on this subject and as a new tariff bill must be framed which will bear somebody else's name than Mills, why elect him? All the candidates read their titles clear to mansion in the tariff reform skies. Why not elect a man best fitted by temperament, ablity and judgment to preside over the house.

They claim for Judge Crisp that he has proved himslf to be the best fitted for the position. Moreover there is a widespread disposition to challenge the claim that Mr. Mills is the great representative of the tariff issue because he happend to be the chairman of the ways and means committee. Mr. Springer said to-day that Mr. Mills had made no more sacrifices for tariff reform than democrats in the north who had taken up the fight in close districts. They had fought the battles of the fort on the issues and ought to be entitled to as much credit as he.

BOLD TALK IN CANADA.

A Member of Parliament Who Speaks His Convictions.

It Would Be Better for Canada to be Annexed Than to Have Her People All Move Into the States.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—Considerable excitement prevails in political circles over the attitude of P. A. Choquette, member of parliament for Montmagny. His latest utterance in the column of his own newspaper, Le Sentinel, of St. Thomas, is worthy of note. "The conservatives," he says, "allege that unrestricted reciprocity will lead to annexation. Well, what if it does? We shall certainly have no objection to that.

"It must come sooner or later, and it will be better to annex now en bloc than one by one, as is the case by immigration. If reciprocity brings about annexation, this will signify that we will profit thereby and that the star spangled banner will be of more use to us than the British flag."

Lamb's Essays—Completion of Shoulder's History Series—The "Portia" Set—Good Stories—Handsome Holiday Specimens—Calendars.

Draw your chair to the window with perfect confidence. Whatever the weather or the prospect outside, no matter. Here is a new volume of the Dramatic Essays of Charles Lamb, edited, introduced and annotated by Brander Matthews. It is refreshing in the first place to hear him claim Lamb as an American, "barring an accident of birth." This is getting even with the English reviewers who class Longfellow and Lowell as English writers. Says Mr. Matthews, after he has made the startling assertion, "Lamb was an Englishman, nay more, a Cockney—indeed a Cockney of the strictest sect; but he had parts not unworthy American adoption." The running sketch of "Lamb and the "Theater" in the introduction is genially appreciative. Mr. Matthews says, "when the hour came that Lamb was released from his daily stint of labor, the opportunity was passed; the hour took away as much as it had brought. Comrades dropped by the wayside, the ranks of old favorites were thinning. The hour came when Mary Lamb, who had worked with him over the 'Tales from Shakspeare' was more and more shut out from him in the darkness of a clouded mind." The concluding lines of the introduction, without quotation marks, are doubtless Mr. Matthews' own:

We speak of friends and their fortunes,
Of what they did and said,
Till the dead alone seem living
And the living alone seem dead.

And at last we hardly distinguish
Between the ghosts and the guests,
And a mist and shadow of sadness
Steals over our merriest jests.

Published by Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. Sold in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull. $1.25.

Volume V of James Schouler's "History of the United States of America Under the Constitution," is on the Bee table. It covers the period from 1847 to 1861, and according to the author's notice, concludes the work. It has been his task, he says, to trace out for the first time, the first era of our national existence, from the revolution to the civil war. In tracing the leading influences of the epoch described he "has largely consulted the current newspapers and magazines, as there was no book to serve as a sure pilot." The author says he would be glad to bring his narrative down to 1865, in one more volume, but admonishes himself not to attempt it. His years are too far advanced. Then, he adds: "History is a tale that is never ended; and the narrator is wise who knows when he has reached his resting place."

Lest the patriotic reader should thoughtlessly wonder why comparatively little had been said about some great men of whom there is much to say, it is explained that an author, in confining himself to a particular era, should give to the men of that era no more and no less than their proportionate influence, however much they may have risen or sunk during the years next following. The work is very complete and shows close research and careful pains-taking as to arrangement and presentation. If it be indeed the first continuous historical narrative covering the period named, it is doubly valuable, and whether this be entirely certain or not, the five volumes are needed books in almost every library.

Dodd, Mead & Co. Per volume $2.25, Brown, Eager & Hull.

The Bee reviewer has fallen into the way of reading every volume of the "Unknown Library" (Cassell's series). There is something tempting about the size and fashion of the books, and their neat covers are like the spick-span clean linen fresh from the laundry (a lover of books always notes these things). "John Sherman and Dhoya" is No. 10 of the the series by Ganconagh, whatever the Celtic word may stand for.

John Sherman is a romantic lad born and bred in the back village of Ballah in the west of Ireland. He does some fishing, some gardening, studies and ponders over a few old books and is greatly given to dreaming. The description of Ballah in a drizzling rain is vivid to a touch:

"The town was dripping but the rain was almost over. The large drops fell seldomer and seldomer into the puddles. It was the hour of ducks. Three or four had squeezed themselves under a gate, and were now splashing about in the gutter of the main street. There was scarcely any one abroad. Once or twice a countryman went by in yellow gaiters covered with mud and looked at the guest."

In this dull place a century behind "the town" (meaning London) John Sherman and his mother lived. She was a discontented soul who seemed out of sorts that she had to live at all. There is no plot to the little tale; it is in the touch of homely nature in its telling that lies the charm, impressed upon the reader by simple, though characterful incidents.

The first movement of the story from Ballah is a letter from John's uncle in London, who is porter in an old-fashioned firm of ship brokers. It is a large business and John is offered a place in the office. He was undecided about going. He went to the tool house and spread his letter upon the bench and re-read it. Presently a beetle crawled onto the sheet. John said to himself the beetle shall decide; if it crawls off the top "Yes," if at the bottom, "No." It crawled off the top and John went—to ask Mary Carton's advice: Mary taught the village school and she and John were good friends; "too good friends to be lovers" or to think of such a thing. Mary said "go to London."

There are quotable bits of sentiment here and there:

"Ah, you like them because you are accustomed to them. In most cases there is not much more to be said of our family affections."

"Without love," he said to himself, "we would be either gods or vegetables."

Dhoya, the second story is the legend of a giant who lived in a cave under the mountains of Donegal.

In that excellent series "Makers of America," published by Dodd, Mead & Co., N. Y., are "John Winthrop, first Governor of the Massachusetts Colony," by Joseph Hopkins Twichell, and "Cotton Mather, the Puritan Priest," by Barrett Wendell. These neatly published books with portrait frontispiece, in crimson cloth covers can be had, the series or single, of Brown, Eager & Hull for 75 cents a volume.

After an interval of twelve years from the time the last of it was written and covering a period of eight years previous, the diary of Lady Dufferin is published in attractive book form with the title, "My Canadian Journal." The extracts, which form the volume of over 400 pages, are from Lady Dufferin's letters to her mother while Lord Dufferin was Governor-General of Canada from 1872 to 1878. It is simple record of daily happenings, of Canadian scenes and customs, of a tour to California and along the Pacific coast. In her preface the writer mentions with enthusiasm "the cordiality and friendliness invariably shown us whenever we crossed our borders into the United States; whether we were traveling officially through Chicago, or went as ordinary visitors to New York or Boston we were always received with a kindness and hospitality we can never forget." There is a domestic, unpretentious air about the letters that is very pleasing, for instance: "I was busy all day getting the drawing room to look "lived-in." The Governor-General is alluded to all the way through as "D," and it is his picture that ornaments the frontispiece. Well illustrated; published by D. Appleton & Co., N. Y. Brown, Eager & Hull.

That Hamilton Wright Mabie is a delightful writer, any one who has reveled in "My Study Fire" and "Under the Trees and Elsewhere," need not be told. His latest volume, issued by Dodd, Mead & Co., is entitled "Short Studies in Literature," a title that indicates the mental feast spread upon its pages. The book is written with a purpose, as a help to students of literature; he aims to make it "a book of insight" for the student rather than a contribution to the mass of books of literary scholarship. Form, Personality, Genius, the Impress of Nature, the Spirit of the Age, Nature in Poetry, International Influences, the Spiritual Element, Folk-lore, the Novel and the Impulse behind Literature are some of the chapter-themes. A choice book well worth close perusal. For $1.25 at Brown, Eager & Hull's.

"Chats with Girls" on Self Culture, by Eliza Chester, is a late issue in the "Portia Series," published by Dodd, Mead & Co. It is brimful of excellent suggestion, a book which will expand the best aspirations of which girl life is capable, namely to cultivate herself mentally, physically and spiritually, that she may be of use to others. A book to be heartily commended which imparts lessons of vital import with no dull, sermon-like movement, but bright with chat and illustrative incidents. Published by Dodd, Mead & Co. Sold in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull; $1.25.

Another volume of the same series is "Physical Development and Exercise for Women," by Mary Taylor Bissell, M. D., author of "Household Hygiene." It is replete with practical suggestions, and a woman who reads it carefully and accepts its advice has taken a long stride towards her own physical betterment. The exercises here described do not involve, necessarily, an attendance at any gymnasium, although this is always desirable. The book is well and strongly written. There is no better gift for a young woman than the Portia series of books. With such aids as these multiplying on every hand, a superior race of women must be coming in the future. Uniform in style and price with the one above mentioned.

"A Pair of Originals" (meaning two brothers aged respectively 5 and 7 years when the story opens), written by E. Ward, is an entertaining story not only for younger readers, but for older ones who delight in the cute pranks and sayings of children, constitutionally good and honest, but naturally full of investigation, contemplation and mischief. "Bunny and Curly" are set in the midst of an English household, and favorite is spelled with an u, so E. Ward is doubtless an English writer and the book a reprint. It is intensely amusing, something after the manner of "Helen's Babies," though not quite so uproarious. Well illustrated and handsomely printed by MacMillan & Co., N. Y. Brown, Eager & Hull; $1.25.

A natural, wholesome school-girl story is "A Sweet Girl Graduate," by L. T. Meade, author of "Polly, a New-Fashioned Girl." In Chapter I. "Priscilla" packs her trunk, "a new trunk with a nice canvas covering over it." She is going from her Auntie's home, "Penywern Cottage," to St. Benet's college for women. The story takes us through the years of her college life, with its vexations and triumphs, in an entertaining manner, during which we note the development of a grand character. It is a thoroughly good story of its kind, inculcating good lessons without the aid of preachments.

One could scarcely imagine the works of a favorite poem in daintier dress than that given "The Complete Works of Tennyson" in two volumes, by the Fred'k A. Stokes Company; Cream white and gold binding with cloth of gold covers strewn with wood violets, fine paper and print and beautiful illustrations. For sale in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull; $3.00.

"Favorite Rhymes from Mother Goose," by Maud Humphrey, gives us these "household words" with the most provokingly 'cute illustrations done in peach pink, sky blue, woods brown and other exquisite tints on fine card paper. Fred'k Stokes & Co., publishers. Sold by Nicholas & Buchanan in Toledo, $1.25.

The Swan of Vilamorta, by Emelia Pardo Bazan, author of "A Wedding Trip," "A Christian Woman" and "Morrina," is translated for Cassell & Co. by Mary J. Serrano. It is a romantic love story with the delicious Spanish flavor well preserved. One gets many glimpses of scenes and customs in the sunny lands by its perusal, aside from the interest of the love story. It is one of the blue-covered series, all of which are good stories.

"Good Things of Life" is the eighth collection of the illustrations and witty sayings that appear in "Life" from time to time. It is charmingly gotten up, as agreeable to the sight as its brightness is to the mind. A handsome holiday book to help scatter smiles and good cheer. Published by the Fred'k A. Stokes company.

The yearly bound volume of "Chatterbox" is at hand as full of good things as ever. The variety of reading will interest children of all ages, from grandma to the baby. Quarto, illuminated board covers, $1.25. Estes & Lauriat, Boston, publishers.

A charming specimen of juvenile holiday literature is the story of Tommy Tucker and Little Bo-Peep woven into a long tale of brief delights and tragic woes, introducing other well-known characters like "Cross-Patch," "Boy Blue," "Peter Peper" and "Sleepy Head," etc. It is very cleverly managed, and the illustrations by Alice Wheaton Adams are exquisitely done. The lithograph and printing is by the Gast Lithograph and Engraving company, and the rhyming is by Thomas Hood. To emphasize the perfectness of the little art album, it is published by Cassell & Co., New York. Sold in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull.

"Tales of To-day and Other Days" are translated from the French and issued in Cassell's Sunshine series. They are excellent selections from those short stories in which the French excel, and are so chosen as to offer a comparison between the writers who, as the translator, E. P. Robins, says, "served to amuse and delight our fathers and grandfathers forty, fifty and sixty years ago," and the writers of to-day. The authors of the earlier day are De Musset, Karr, Gautier, and Merimee. The later writers are Coppie, Baurget, De Maupassant, Claretie and Zola. The palm of superiority will be awarded according to the taste of the individual reader. One reader's verdict is that the best story in the book is the first, De Musset's "White Blackbird."

Calendars Galore.

There are the little Japanese girls in their pretty tinted flowered gowns, with their fans and parasols, decorated by Maud Humphrey and printed by the art publishers, the Fred'k A. Stokes company; price 50 cents.

"The Mother Goose Calendar" contains twelve fac similes of water color designs by Maud Humphrey. One of the neatest things of the season for a holiday gift. From the same house as the above. Sold in Toledo by Nicholas & Buchanan. $1.50.

CAUGHT BY A COLD.

How a Blast from the North Often Causes the Worst Disasters.

A cold wind blows and you feel chilled; the air may be raw and you continue to feel chilly. Perhaps you are riding, possibly walking and the chilly feeling continues. The first thing you know it becomes a cold. What is a cold? It is a chilling of the blood, so that it becomes thick and clotted. Cold always makes the blood this way. It gets clotted, when it does not circulate fast enough. This is all very simple and plain, is it not? And does it not clearly show what must be done, when the blood gets chilled and clotted? It must be warmed and its thick clotted condition removed. Can this be done by heat? Sometimes and partially; but heat from a fire or furnace only warms the outside of the body and most of the blood is away from the surface and can only be reached internally. It requires a good healthful stimulant to reach it and warm it. This stimulant should always be pure whiskey, but unfortunately few whiskies have any medicinal properties. There is but one whiskey in America that possesses real medicinal power, combined with purity and that is Duffy's Pure Malt. That it does possess these qualities is proven by the analysis of chemists and the testimonials and endorsements of thousands of physicians and the fact that it is the most popular whiskey in the world to-day and has stood the test of years. This fact, perhaps, is not fully realized as it should be, and there are many unscrupulous dealers who try to sell a cheap and inferior whiskey when Duffy's is called for. That they deceive and impose upon the people, in such statements, is easily understood by the fact, that they can make more money on cheap and injurious goods, than on the pure and meritorious. Do not be deceived by them.

MOST PEOPLE

Know only a comparatively few things thoroughly—all else is more or less uncertain.

Take your own case. What do you know about CARPETS, for instance? Are you competent to detect poor materials, or imperfect weaving, or unreliable colorings, or old-style patterns?

No.

Then will it not be wisdom on your part to make your purchases of CARPETS where all these points are taken care of in your interest, and where you are protected, not only from direct misrepresentation, but from the results of your own inexperience?

That seems plain enough.

Just two things we promise every customer. They are these:

That every salesman shall tell the whole truth about every piece of goods offered for sale; that anything which proves imperfect, through the appearance of any hidden defect subsequent to purchase, shall be made right.

The name of our firm stands behind these two guarantees.

Very likely you are thinking of purchasing one or more CARPETS shortly. If so, consider what we have said.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat and corn market quiet. Wheat one penny lower for winter and spring and 1-2 pence lower for California. Corn 1-2 pence lower.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,209,960 bu., compared with 706,642 bu. on the same day last year.

The imports into the United Kingdom for the week were 3,872,000 bu. of wheat and 202,000 barrels of flour, equal to 4,781,000 bu. of wheat, and 896,000 bu. of corn.

The quantity of flour and wheat on ocean passage decreased last week 800,000 bu., being a decrease to the United Kingdom of 1,072,000 bu. and an increase to the continent of 272,000 bu. Corn decreased 208,000 bu.

Our table herein of available wheat and corn shows an increase of 1,451,587 bu. wheat, and an increase of 468,250 bu. corn.

New York "Produce Ex. Weekly" says: The wheat on passage from India, Nov. 10, estimated by Beerbohm at 4,864,000 bu to the United Kingdom and 1,608,000 bu to the continent. One year ago the quantity afloat from India was 1,880,000 bu, comprising 1,104,000 bu for the United Kingdom and 776,000 bu for the Continent.

In India the weather has been quite favorable for wheat sowing, and under the incentive of higher prices than usual, it is likely that the area under the new crop will be larger than in previous years. Exports hold up remarkably well, considering the season. At last reports there was an active trade in new crop for April-May shipment.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 503,318 bus. in excess of the corresponding Tuesday in 1890. The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 259,750 bus. of wheat and flour to an aggregate of 310,000 bus. Export of corn 117,368 bus. and of oats 253,308 bus.

English markets as reported herein are dull and lower for wheat and corn.

Liverpool Stocks.

Liverpool has gained in stocks of wheat in November 400,000 bus. and in flour equal to 315,000 bus. more. Gain in corn 80,000 bus.

The Prussian Prohibition.

Nothing better illustrates the unexpected in wheat than the effect of Prussian prohibition of the export of it. Its anticipation doubtless held the market from a break, but it came upon its occurence, and the price has been weakening ever since. It came too late. While you are considering it you may as well remember our prediction concerning it.

Northwest Wheat.

Notwithstanding the immense movement of wheat in the northwest, the milling and shipping have kept the stocks within the aggregates of last year. On Saturday last the wheat at all points was 19,777,707 bu, against 19,891,900 bu. But now that navigation has closed, if the sales by farmers continue at the same ratio the stocks will largely increase, as the rail equipments are inadequate to move it east.

Accumulations Abroad.

Yesterday we noted the increase in importations above the estimated consumption. To-day we print a table giving the exports from all countries to importing countries in 17 weeks, 159,410,000 bus. against requirement of 149,000,000 bus.

Liverpool Quotations and Quality.

Spring wheat which in September was quoted 14c bu. above winter red is now quoted at precisely the same price. We have a sample of the winter wheat dealt in at Liverpool, and cabled "Standard sample of No. 2 red winter." Our inspector-in-chief grades it No. 3 by our standard.

The wheat markets in this country opened with a little more firmness and spirit. The Chicago deliveries on December contracts were light, and dealers were generally talking of a reaction in the market. Later the cable announced lower closing English markets, and the promise of better prices was again broken. The condition is that from the extreme northwest to our seacoast there is something like a blockade of grain, and abroad the markets are temporarily well supplied and their dealers are serene. The markets close at a loss compared with yesterday.

Corn has been fairly maintained and closed steady on nearby futures.

In New York December wheat closed at a loss of 3-4c and May at a loss of 1c. December corn 1-8c lower and May steady. December oats 1-4c off.

In Chicago December and May wheat closed at a loss of 7-8c. December corn 3-8c lower and May steady. December oats, 31 7-8c.

In Toledo.—The trading in wheat futures has been a little less active to-day. Opening trades were at about yesterday's closing prices, but the markets became firmer and gained 3-8c to 1-2c, but lost it, and closed 5-8c lower for December and 3-4c for May. On the call December sold at 95 3-4c and May at $1.03 1-8. After the call December sold at 95 1-2c to 96c, and closed at 95c. May sold at $1.03 to $1.03 1-2 and closed at $1.02 3-8. January sold at 97 3-8c.

Cash wheat was a little more in demand. No. 2 sold at 95 1-2c to 96c and closed at 95c asked, a loss of 1-2c to 5-8c. No. 3 soft at 93c.

Corn. No. 2 for December at 49c; No. 3 at 43c, a loss of 1c. Oats, nothing doing. No. 2 about 33 1-2c. Rye, No. 2 at 94 1-2c.

Clover seed was not very active, and a shade weaker. Prime for cash at $5 10; December, $5 07 1-2; February $5 17 1-2; January, $5 15; March, $5 25; No. 2 at $4 90.

There were only 69,500 shares sold on the stock exchange this morning. The fact will convey some idea of the dullness that prevailed. Chicago Gas was about the only speculative that displayed any activity. Burlington came next. Ohio & Miss was exceptionally strong, advancing from 23 to 25 3-4. The general market was firm at the opening and continued so throughout the first hour. At 11 o'clock prices were fractionally higher. Rich. & West Point was the feature of the second hour, declining from 11 to 10, a portion of which decline it afterwards recovered. Chicago Gas was strong throughout and was at its best prices at noon. The general list reacted slightly from the early advance. At this writing the market is stagnant.

New York, Dec. 1.—Flour unsettled on a moderate trading; city mill extras, $5 25 for West Indies; superfine, $3 25@3 90; fine, $2 90@3 65; Minnesota extra, $3 60@5 60. SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Goodwin and Francis Goodwin, trustees of the will of James Goodwin, deceased, of Hartford, Conn., sold to William Baker, of this city, 60 feet on the corner of Summit and Madison streets, including the Hartford block. The consideration was $50,000.

AT PERRYSBURG TO-MORROW.

A lodge of the Knights of Pythias will be instituted at Perrysburg to-morrow, the officer in charge being Mr. C. D. Younker of Bowling Green. It is expected that over one hundred visitors will be present. In the evening at 6:05 Lucas lodge's team of this city will go up for the purpose of conferring the amplified third, and will return on the early morning train. Next Monday night the team will also confer the third rank for one of Toledo lodge's candidates.

MISSIONARY SERVICE.

The union of unions of the missionary societies of the Congregational churches of Toledo will be held in the Central Congregational church Wednesday afternoon, December 9, beginning at 3 o'clock. Among the subjects to be discussed will be the work done by the Sunday school and Publishing society and by the New West Educational committee, and what the Toledo societies can do to forward the work. Every one interested in the work of home and foreign missions is invited to attend this meeting.

JOE SMITH BOOKED FOR TOLEDO.

A dispatch in the Cincinnati Enquirer, to-day, referring to the sale of the Urbana Citizen, closes thus:

"Mr. Smith goes to Toledo the first of the year, where he takes editorial charge of the Toledo Commercial, and he made this choice from among many lucrative offers. There is general regret here that Mr. Smith is to leave the city. His industry, energy and brilliant attainments have won for him the universal esteem of the people of this community."

SUIT FOR RELIEF.

In common pleas court to-day John A. Waterson brought action against John W. Smith to recover $2,000 paid for 200 shares in an aluminum.

The petition states that John A. Watterson, on August 15, 1887, paid to John W. Smith $2,000 for the stock and that the plant, located at Detroit, has a capacity of 50 tons of aluminum daily at a cost of 13 cents per pound.

It charges that the company did not have any factory at Detroit, but an experimental retort at Findlay, instead; that no such company with such capacity ever existed or now exists, and that the stock is utterly worthless to him. Judgment in the sum of $2,000 with interest is prayed for.

EVENING COOKING SCHOOL.

There was a full attendance last evening at the manual training school cooking room, where the young ladies of the evening class were initiated in the mysteries of the art of bread-baking. Every woman knows that it is only the very best of cooks can make good bread, and any man knows he has drawn a prize if he has a wife who can make bread "such as mother made." Therefore the importance of last night's lesson, during which the pupils were taught how to make strained brown bread, graham bread, white bread and bread sticks to be served with soups. The scholars are very much interested in their lessons, and every one concerned is sure the evening cooking school is a good thing.

AN IMPORTANT ARREST.

Charles Faber Charged with Raiding O. Y. C. Yachts.

His Residence Searched and Booty from a Dozen Robberies Turned Up.

This morning the charges of burglary and larceny, and receiving stolen property were placed against Charles Faber, the prisoner whom Detective Spore shot Saturday afternoon, while trying to escape, on the corner of Washington and St. Clair streets.

Faber is an old offender, and has been under police surveillance for some time for having a hand in the numerous robberies which have been perpetrated in the city of late, more especially the raid made on the yachts at anchor off Cherry street bridge.

Since the first visit to the boats over a month ago they have been ransacked twice.

The detectives have been shadowing Faber for some time, and gathering evidence enough to warrant a search of his house on Erie street, near Nebraska avenue. This was made Saturday, and missing property from a dozen different robberies was found about the premises, among which were articles missing from the yachts.

RAPID TRANSIT

Of an Overcoat Thief to the Police Station.

Last evening a message was 'phoned into the police station that a thief had stolen an overcoat valued at $25 from Adam Luteman, in East Toledo. Tim O'Brien was sent over, and in just 40 minutes from the time he left the station the officer tramped two miles, bagged his man, recovered the coat, and was back to the police station. The thief gave his name as Albert Van Dusen, and this morning in police court he was fined $20 and sent up for 30 days.

SEWER GAS EXPLOSION.

Shocks a Block But Does No Damage Otherwise.

At 1:45 this afternoon an explosion of sewer gas occurred in the abandoned basement of the Art store on the wholesale side of Summit, between Madison and Adams streets. There was a double explosion, one in the basement and one on the corner of Madison and Summit streets. The force of the latter blew the heavy iron cover of the manhole fully 10 feet in the air, and blasted ice all of 6 inches thick for quite a space around the corner. But little damage was done in the basement, though it looked for a while as if there would be a large blaze.

The department responded promptly to a call, and the fire was soon extinguished. Chief Wall after a brief investigation, gave it as his opinion that the explosion was caused by some careless body throwing a lighted match into an old closet. He thought it was sewer gas mingled with natural gas. The smell indicated this fact.

The shock of the explosion was felt over on St. Clair street, and the report of it attracted a large crowd of curious people.

BIG BLAZE AT PAULDING.

Damage Caused to the Extent of Sixty Thousand.

The Loss Partly Covered by Insurance.

Full List of the Buildings Destroyed—The Conflagration Believed to Have Been of Incendiary Origin.

Paulding, Dec. 1.—(Special)—A very disastrous fire occurred here, commencing about 1 o'clock this morning, causing a loss of about $60,000, with insurance of $25,000.

Following are those burned:

S. R. Mott, law office and building.

Mrs. Lizzie Davis, millinery stock and building.

Nelson Davis, stock of groceries.

John Eustache, harness shop and store.

Ed Dix, building.

G. Linn, building.

Hudson Brothers' stock of groceries.

Potter's bank building.

W. B. Potter, two buildings.

A. G. Snow, stock of drugs.

E. G. Coons, meat market.

P. M. Thompson, two buildings.

Hubble's bakery and restaurant.

B. Tapsic, barber shop.

Jas. Coupland, building.

Rice & Co., flour and feed store.

Lewis Hamilton, Hamilton house and goods.

The vault of Potter's bank has not been opened, but it thought everything is safe.

It is thought by some that the cause of the fire was incendiary.

The Thompson house just across the street from the burnt district was badly scorched, as was Thompson's furniture store.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Representatives-elect Flickinger and Heller are in Columbus hunting quarters for the winter.

The scholars at the Monroe school were dismissed yesterday on account of a lack of fuel to keep warm.

It was Louise instead of Bessie Obermiller who purchased the Hubbard block, as shown by the records to-day.

Mr. Albert Neukom severely punished a filthy beast who was around Broadway exposing his person last night.

The meeting of the Toledo Harmonic club, which was postponed last night on account of the opera, will be held next Friday night.

The case of the state against Charles Brandt, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, is on hearing to-day in criminal court.

Papers were filed at Columbus yesterday changing the name of the Page Steel Wheel company to that of the Toledo Bicycle company.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Barkdull and Miss Frances Crowell, who have been the guests of Dr. D. D. Benedict and family for several days, returned to their home in Toledo to-day.—Norwalk Reflector.

A dispatch received at noon from Major Dodd, at Guthrie, Oklahoma, by Mr. Graff M. Acklin, announces the death of little Miss Zolie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dodd, after a three weeks' illness.

Rev. P. P. Pope, presiding elder of the Toledo district, received a dispatch this morning announcing the destruction by fire of the Methodist church at Swanton last night. Loss $4,000; insurance, $2,000. Mr. Pope left at noon for Swanton.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following: Wm. H. Brown and Leafa Clawson, Francis Bulman and Mary M. Starck, Wm. J. Kent and Rosa Provoncha, Frank J. Mensing and Hattie Hatsworth, Harry H. Beckwith and May G. McNelly, Wm. Brown and Delia Taylor.

The Eureka's contract awarded Van Noorden Bros.—The Eureka Collecting Co. of Philadelphia and Chicago, have awarded the contract of furnishing uniforms for quite a number of the collectors which the company have located in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, to the well-known firm of Van Noorden Bros., tailors, Toledo, Ohio.

At the Monroe street car barns at Auburndale, when one-horse cars were running without conductors, there was a light place in front of the barns to aid the passengers, on a dark night, in finding the sidewalk without the difficulties now encountered by the many patrons who reside in that part of the city. There is no electric light or gas at this point, and it would be doing the people, who have to go out there after dark, a great favor if the old light was again placed in its usual place.

DIED.

It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Fertilizers for Winter Wheat.

Mr. O. W. Cox, of Ogemaw county, Michigan, has a 12-acre field, part of which was in oats this year and part in winter wheat, seeded down with clover this spring. The clover failed, and he asks if he had better summer-fallow the field next year and sow it to wheat in the fall of 1892, or sow it to wheat this fall and depend on a dressing of superphosphate and nitrate of soda to give him a crop. "The land," he says, "is somewhat run down and did not yield much this year. I thought, perhaps, the nitrate and superphosphate might improve the chance of getting clover to catch in the wheat next spring. I want the clover to plow under and cannot afford to buy the fertilizers unless there would be a fair prospect, in an ordinary season, of getting enough increase in the wheat crop to pay or nearly pay for the fertilizers used, leaving the benefit to the clover for the profit on the transaction." This is an important, practical question, clearly stated, and is worthy of a distinct, definite answer. Unfortunately we are yet without any experiments in this country that afford the desired information. Thousands and tens of thousands of farmers use superphosphate on winter wheat and find it profitable. Many, perhaps most farmers, prefer a fertilizer that, besides superphosphate, contains a little nitrogen—say 1 or 2 per cent. But when actual proof is asked for, based on accurate experiments as to whether this small quantity of nitrogen does or does not do any good, we ask in vain. If it was our own case, we would sow 250 pounds of superphosphate and 75 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre this fall at the time of sowing the wheat, and in the spring another 75 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda broadcast, as a topdressing on the wheat early in the spring. If we got a fair price for the wheat, say $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel, we should fully expect to get more from the increased crop of wheat than the fertilizer cost, and have the straw and the better clover and grass crop as so much extra profit, not to mention the fact that a heavy crop of wheat leaves the land cleaner than a half-starved crop. Summer-fallows are out of fashion. Fertilizers and improved implements have banished them from most farms. Nevertheless, on strong, clayey land that has been neglected and is full of weeds it is often the case that a good summer-fallow is the cheapest and most effective way to secure a crop of wheat and a good crop of clover and grass afterward. But let it be a good summer-fallow—no half-way measures. If the weeds are not killed outright, we fail to attain the desired object of summer-fallowing.—American Agriculturist.

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD.

The success of the season on the American platform is without doubt Sir Edwin Arnold. It is not often one has a chance to hear one of the great poets of the century interpret his own poems, and so it is not strange that he is being greeted everywhere by crowded houses and cultured audiences. Sir Edwin remains in America for three months only, and all available dates have long been taken, so no other opportunity will be given to hear him. He will be at Wheeler's next Saturday, and it will be the opportunity of a lifetime. Seats at Freeman's.

Cotton Seed Hulls as Stock Food.

While cotton seed hulls are admitted on all sides to be an excellent rough feed, I do not think they have yet been estimated high enough in comparison with hay or other provender.

Having fed large quantities for two years, I regard them as being worth more, pound for pound, than average Bermuda or other grass hay. I feed per day about 8 to 12 pounds hulls, 4 pounds wheat bran and 4 pounds cotton seed meal, thoroughly mixed together, with very satisfactory results. This ration is very cheap—about 10 cents per day—and the yield and quality of milk highly satisfactory. Hulls are much more easily handled than hay, and there is less waste in feeding, as the cows eat up the hulls very clean.

In the spring of 1890, about the time I thought there was getting to be abundant grass in pasture, my hulls gave out. The milk yield began to fall off so that I increased the bran and meal, but never did I, during the whole spring, get as good results as when I used hulls. So I consider hulls (fed in connection with bran and cotton seed meal) equal to tolerably ample Bermuda pasture as a milk producer.

Having found them such an excellent food for cattle, and knowing that cotton seed meal is being fed to some extent to horses, I reasoned that hulls ought also to be good for horses. So I procured some corn meal, and by mixing only a very small quantity of cotton seed meal and hulls with bran and corn meal, succeeded in making them eat it. The quantity of hulls and meal was increased gradually until each animal consumed about three pounds of meal and considerable hulls. * * * * This writer can very well remember having been raised on a cotton farm 32 miles from a railroad) when teams of oxen would haul loads of cotton away from the gin, where hundreds of bushels of seed were rotting, and would have to pull in addition enough $1.50 corn to eat on the trip, and it might be that this very wagon would return loaded with western corn to feed the horses to make the next crop. Cotton seed was then thought to be unfit for oxen. That was economy with a vengeance, but we are doing very much the same thing now.

The south is paying literally millions of dollars for horses, mules, corn, meat, hay and other products of other sections, while the oil mills of the south are burning a million tons annually of the finest feed (cotton seed hulls) for want of purchasers at $2 to $4 a ton, and that here in the land of cheap coal and wood.

Enough hulls burned, if fed to a good class of animals, to produce two hundred million pounds of beef, worth six million dollars; or, if mixed with a little more skill and made into butter, to produce twelve million dollars worth. If made to take the place of the hay, corn and oats purchased abroad, the saving would be enormous, probably twenty million dollars at the prices prevailing the past year. —W. C.
